A GREAT MIRACLE

Art and Culture of India

Summary

A brief journey through the four ages, from primitive man to the Krita Yuga, Treta Yuga, Dwapara Yuga, and Kali Yuga. A wonderful description of the martial art, the first art, born on earth in the wisdom of primitive man. The descriptions also take place in the context of martial arts, Yaksha Gana, and Theyyam.

This book, which integrates the spiritual, the material, and the modern through the backdrop of the art and culture of Tulunadu, is also a dream guide that helps readers achieve their own personal development. My intention is to protect the art, sports and culture of Tulu nadu.! As well as that of all countries.!!

All living beings, including you and me, were born on this earth with an emp-ty mind and a sacred body. The empty mind and sacred body of every new-born born in this era called the modern era gets polluted during the period of growth. Maybe because they deviate from culture and seek refuge in modernity...! The fact that modern science alone cannot separate knowledge, wisdom and ignorance. My goal with this work is to make the cultural com-munity aware of this fact and to protect artistic and sports culture, while also helping artists and enthusiasts understand the knowledge needed to main-tain the health of mind and body through reading.

Working style.

Indian culture is a diverse science that cannot be discovered, experienced or acknowledged by modern sciences, scientific methods, scientific instru-ments or scientific languages, but can be acknowledged through experi-ence. Thus, I have created this work by combining spiritual science, materi-al perspective and purely fictional literature.

Results

Spirituality and materiality are two-way movements from a single point, the mind. Education is the way that man has found to prevent the movement of the mind from deviating during the period of growth. The science and prac-tice of education are based on the combination of spirituality, materiality and modernity.

When education is made possible by eliminating training, only the mind de-velops. The effect of exercise is lost in the body. The health of the body is complete only by practicing art and sports. The book also describes the im-portance of art and sports along with modern education. This book will be useful to everyone, from teachers to students, art and sports coaches, and the cultural community.

Conclusion

All my inventions and descriptions are purely fictional. Until modern science and scientific and technological tools can discover them, my works will re-main fictional... But I think that if readers can experience the work with spiritual-physical knowledge, they will be able to experience and accept it as I was able to experience it.

My conclusion is based on the words of Albert Einstein, the greatest scientist the world has ever seen. The experience that arises from mysteries is the most beautiful of all experiences. This is the fundamental development of man at the birth of true art and science. He who marvels without understanding this is like a dead and blind man.

Albert Einstein

Albert Einstein’s quotes paved the way for me to journey into mysteries. What I was able to find in it was a quote. Self-generated doubts and questions are the path to conclusion. Conclusion is the guide to truth.

Dedication

To the venerable Guru

Puthanpurakkal Sasidharan

Malayalam teacher G. H. S. Karadukka

Sarvam Shruti is the second book I am writing in this short life with my humble knowledge and experience. You know that Albert Einstein, the greatest scientist the world has ever seen, has a famous quote about life..!? Life is like a bicycle ride..! If you want to balance, you have to keep moving..!! Thus, amidst the movement of life, I could not rest anywhere. I could not understand anything and achieve perfection.! My education is 10th standard. I had to skip Malayalam as I had chosen Sanskrit as a subject in the 5th standard. When I was studying in the 10th standard, I got the opportunity to sit in a Malayalam class. That day, the teacher took a class on Malayalam literature, moving away from the subject matter and making the subject matter his own."

Literary language is not a special language.! Every person has a literary language.!! A writer; There is no need to search for letters, meanings, and grammar.! Letters, meanings, and grammar all follow an imaginative person.!! When I absorbed these words, I sat still with my mind. How can I find imagination..! I was surprised. The word imagination still remains an unanswered question in me. That is, I have not been able to reach perfection through imagination. However, I understand that imagination is born in every person. Because all these written lines were born in me. Thus, the path to writing was inspired by a Malayalam class. Years later, when a book is born in me, I consider it a blessing of the Almighty that I can remember and describe my teacher. When I travel through the book Oru Mahatbhutham, through the artistic and cultural heritage of my native Tulunad, through knowledge, wisdom, dreams, and concepts, I feel that it was my imagination that traveled before me. Because if I can write like this with such a humble education, or if the letters and meanings follow me, I wonder how great the discoveries and words of the Guru are. Praying for eternal peace for the departed soul of my Guru, I dedicate this book, "A Great miracle Art and Cultureof India" to the memory of my Guru.

Bowing down to the readers.

Through this book A Great miracle, I describe the achievements of the art and sports practices of my native Tulunad. But the book discusses the changes, advantages and disadvantages that occur to us, our surroundings and the country due to our physical and mental problems. The style and narrative of the book are mixed, like the changes that occur when spirituality, modernity and science merge. Therefore, it can be fully understood only if you read it from beginning to end.

Through research, I have come to understand that when a country's art forms, sports and the customs and beliefs surrounding them disappear, the culture of that country collapses or causes collapse. Not only that, the book also describes the discoveries made through meditation and transcendental meditation.

It has described how to achieve transcendental meditation. But this book was written using the skills and knowledge that were born in me. I have not been able to practice martial arts except for entering Goda (part of the Tulu Nadan Kalari. Talim). After some time, I was able to practice Prana Therapy, and by enabling and practicing meditation based on it, I practiced Third Eye Meditation or Ajna Chakra Meditation.

After completing the eighteen (stages) of martial arts, the next stage is transcendental meditation. But I have only been able to combine the blessings of martial arts. Except that I have passed by the edge of pranic healing on the path of life, I have not been able to achieve the perfection of pranic healing. I have only been able to practice the basic, progressive, and third eye opening (Ajna Chakra Meditation).

Except for the description of the great book (Bhagavad Gita) described in this book, everything else is my own discoveries. This description may seem like my imagination to you..! If you think so, that is also true. Because: Until it is discovered or accepted with modern scientific and technological tools, all my descriptions will remain imaginary.! This saddens me.! However, I am proud that the culture and heritage of our Tulu Nadu in India remains at a height that the modern scientific world cannot reach.

The arts and customs that exist in every country can only be experienced through experience. Art and culture are a mysterious source of energy and wonder that cannot be evaluated with technical tools.

Even if we talk about or experience the benefits of artistic performances, not only as cultural or ritualistic, it is impossible to fully experience them in a human lifetime. The cultural heritage of every country stands at such a high level.

We can experience all the great Indian scriptures like Rigveda, Yajurveda, Samaveda, Atharvaveda, the four Vedas, the one hundred and eight Upanishads, the Mahabharata, the Ramayana, as science, art and physical education. This is the culture of India, which combines art, physical education, knowledge, divinity, tradition, and everything.

Science means what we can experience here right now, and that is what we call science.

Human birth is the birth in which one experiences the moral practices of mother, father, guru, God, dharma (mental action), karma (physical action), bhakti, and liberation. This can be experienced only through human birth. Therefore, human birth is the birth in which even God desires to take birth. Such is the noble birth that human birth is. Thus, our great scriptures were born out of material desires. How can this be experienced scientifically? Let us look at an example.

Everything that exists physically is changing. That is, in every atomic time (a hundred times the speed of a microsecond), an object or a characteristic undergoes the phenomenon of change. Science is what can be experienced or understood by these facts. In this, there will be physical change and spiritual change. Spiritual change is the change that is born in the analysis of the mind. That is, what can be experienced by the mind, starting with the answer, question, analysis, feeling, emotions.!? This is called spiritual science. Thus, all the great scriptures, arts and sports of Indian heritage are the science that can be experienced and acted upon physically by the mind.

It is well known that Krishna teaches Dharma and awakens Arjuna, who was mentally exhausted during the Mahabharata war!? In fact, it is Arjuna’s body and Krishna’s intellect(mind) that stand or fight during the war. In this way, we can awaken ourselves from exhaustion by seeing our body as Arjuna and our mind as Krishna.

If you maintain your mind in this way, if you are tired due to a minor illness that arises or is experienced over time, you will gain the mental strength to awaken your body, Arjuna, with Krishnan was mind.

Among those born on earth, only one great soul has been born who has gained strength through the use of mind and intellect. The truth that the person who took that birth was only the charioteer of Arjuna can be understood in this age and in the ages to come through the book Mahabharata.

The Mahabharata is notable for the fact that Krishna, who was on the side of Dharma in the Mahabharata War, did not take up arms, or rather, he did not fight the war with weapons. However, the side of Dharma won because of Krishna's mind and intellect.

Another Mahabharata war that was won in this way was the Indian freedom struggle that was born from Mahatma Gandhi. Gandhiji, who was on the side of the struggle, not only did not touch the weapon with his hands! He led the struggle by advising the struggle forces not to take up arms.

Similarly, it was Krishna, the charioteer, who awakened Gandhiji in every decision. Just as the warrior Arjuna was awakened with his mind, it was Arjuna's charioteer who awakened Mahatma Gandhi with his mind. That was by standing on the Bhagavad Gita.

Our Mahabharata is the battlefield where Krishna in Dwapara Yuga and Gandhiji in Kali Yuga won the "Dharma War" without touching a weapon. Dharma here means existence. My dharma is to perform my karma (duty)! For that, I have to exist.! Thus, our Mahabharata witnessed the war in Dwapara Yuga and Kali Yuga for its own existence.

What was destroyed or left behind by the combined strength of Gandhiji and the sons of religion - Hindus, Jains, Buddhists, Sikhs, Muslims, and Christians - was the bloody battlefield of Kurukshetra, along with its weapons and arrows.

Now let us return to science itself. We can experience all our heritages spiritually and experience them materially by acting on them. Thus, the Bhagavatam is science. That is, the Srimad Bhagavatam is a science that exists spiritually and materially. It does not become science just because it is read or understood. It becomes science only when it is experienced spiritually and materially. That is, the Srimad Bhagavatam is science for those who can experience it, and for those who cannot experience it, it is just a book.

It was on the strength of this experience that Gandhiji was able to lead the freedom struggle to victory. As described in this book, one of the wonders of this.! Mahatma Gandhi led his life by imitating the Bhagavad Gita and making it an empirical science.! Or maybe Krishna himself was Mahatma Gandhi.!! That's how I feel. The reason I feel that way. They won the war led by Krishna in Dwapara Yuga and Gandhiji in Kali Yuga. Even today, Gandhi is known as the leader of the freedom struggle and Krishna as the leader of the war called Mahabharata.

But Krishna and Gandhi did not fight or lead for power or other material gains.! Then why did they start a war or a fight?! I am asking you this amazing question to find the answer. If Krishna died from an arrow, then Gandhiji died from a bullet. Can you find any similarities like this!!

In a sense, would the Bhagavad Gita have been written if the birth of Krishna, the embodiment of intelligence, or the birth of a fictional character, had not occurred?

If the Bhagavad Gita had not been composed, what would have been the inner consciousness and vision of the great soul Gandhiji? If Mahatma Gandhi's inner consciousness and vision had not been transformed into the reality of science, would we have the happiness or freedom we experience today?

In the Mahabharata war, there is a scene where the great Bhishma, pierced all over by Arjuna's arrows, is waiting in agony for death. He received the boon of "Swachchinda Mrityu" (Sanskrit word meaning. Die only if you wish to die) from his own father, Shantanu. Without wishing for death, Bhishma is waiting in agony for the arrival of Uttarayana (auspicious moment). It is at this time that Krishna approaches Bhishma along with the Pandavas (this incident takes place on the battlefield of Kurukshetra). Krishna and the Pandavas bow down to Bhishma.

Bhishma understood one thing.! There are some problems that are bothering the sons of Pandu. Since they cannot be solved, Krishna has come to me along with the sons of Pandu. Bhishma guessed for himself.!

Bhishma's guess was correct. Even after winning the war, some problems were bothering the minds of the Pandu sons, and therefore none of them were ready to become king.

In the eighteen-day war, twenty-two lakh people died. The figures are according to the Bhagavata Shastra. This includes their own brothers, grandfathers, and gurus. Who is left for the widows? Who is left for the children, who is left for the aged parents? The sons of Pandu cried out and asked Krishna!

Krishna understood. The truth is that the sons of Pandu loved their relatives, brothers, fathers, grandfathers, and teachers with a bond of love. This disturbs their minds. If this is not resolved, a great calamity will happen. Understanding this, Krishna remained silent for some time. Arjuna continued. Who is there for widows now? Who is there for children now? Who is there for old parents now? I cannot be the king of a kingdom cursed with tears, Krishna," said Arjuna. Hearing this, Krishna looked at the faces of the Pandavas. The Pandavas sided with Arjuna and refused to become the king. Realizing that the Pandavas are mentally exhausted, Krishna once again brings the Pandavas to the 'Kurukshetra' battlefield.

Who is there in Kurukshetra...!? Bhishma, waiting for the right moment to die.

What kind of Bhishma...!? Bhishma, who lives with an untiring mind in a body so exhausted that he cannot even move, with his entire body pierced by arrows.

Thus, the Lord told Bhishma Pita Maha, who was in a tired body but had an untiring mind, all the problems of the Dharmaputras.

Bhishma, who understood everything, said to the sons of Pandu. Alas! My sons... It is a pity that you had to experience so much sorrow! You were born in a good family, raised by a good mother... You developed love, unity and connection with each other... Finally, your Dharma truth triumphed.

Children, if you are still feeling sad, it means you have not understood the truth that you should understand. The entire universe knew the truth that as long as Krishna is with you, you cannot be defeated. Krishna has helped you overcome many difficulties. He has protected you from many dangers. He has guided you by upholding truth and dharma. You understand that He has achieved everything for you. But you have not yet been able to understand who Krishna is.

We experience freedom. That is how we remember Gandhiji. No one reexamines who Gandhiji was. I am explaining this so that we can understand how the Bhagavad Gita becomes a science if we travel through Gandhiji's life story and enter the Bhagavad Gita.

As mentioned earlier, everyone knows the Bhagavad Gita, Krishna and Gandhiji. But what is the Bhagavad Gita? No one understands these days who Krishna was and who Gandhi was.

I want to say that our culture should not be seen as a physical story and character.

Thus, our culture is a heritage that includes meticulous and meticulous scientific texts, scientific arts, and scientific physical methods.

Similarly, Sanskrit. Sanskrit is the script and language in which culture is written. That is, our Sanskrit language. All the books in Indian heritage are written in Sanskrit before translations.

Here, science, art, and sports are intertwined. That is, behind the arts like Natyam (dance), acting, and speech, what works is the energy or power of sports. Similarly, behind sports is the joy of knowledge, which is art.

A literary work needs to be understood by the new generations of the cultural community. Only then can we walk towards modernity. The reason for the rapid leap into the mystery of modernity is that man, who should have remained in the originality, had to remain a slave. That is, life and medicine.

We have understood that the physical nature of a human body originates from the truth of Brahman, the ultimate time. That is, before birth, it is in the womb, before being in the womb, in the feeling, and before being in the feeling, in Brahma.

The cell that is not born through emotion, or the egg or sperm, is born through medicine. Allopathy, Homeopathy, Ayurveda, Siddha and other alternative medicine treatments stand by the self-understanding that they exist to give birth to facts that are not born through emotion. Thus, while modern health science is successful, the reason why people shift from a food-based approach to a medicine-based approach, depending on age and time, is that people are unable to understand with knowledge the truth that what is behind this success is the ignorance of wandering man. Will he be ignorant if he is born from medicine? This remains to be discovered.

It is only in such qualities that an object is born in the experience of emotions (heredity, hereditary disease) that the object that is born can exist. The truth of Brahman is the greatest truth, which can be seen and understood through the life that is born from medicine. Here, by taking a leap into modern science, we need to come to the realization that a man rooted in the qualities that are medicine can only survive in the rhythm of life by adding the voice of medicine. It is also important to understand that the leap forward undermines the achievements of modern science.

Modern science is not a science that should be kept, understood and used in materialism. Modern science is a science that should be kept, understood and used in subtlety and super-subtlety, that is, in the depth of spiritual meditation or knowledge, and transformed into a means of experiencing. It should be considered that the reason why modern science has become a danger to man is that man has jumped into modernity without or without mixing spirituality, without the knowledge to distinguish good and bad. Or to understand.

We also need to find out why, when modern allopathy, homeopathy, Ayurveda, and other parallel therapies have been successful or have claimed to be successful, a human being who had a life expectancy of up to a hundred years has shrunk to sixty or fifty.

Now let’s move on to the Tulu language.

Although the Tulu language has a script, I have come to understand that no book has been written in book form (paper) except on palm leaves using the script. Although it is known that the Tulu language exists, it may have been difficult to find written books using the script because historical researchers have not noticed them or because they cannot understand the language, making it difficult to research the script and its origins.

But how many people know the truth that the Tulu script is used to write and print in the Malayalam language.!

Thunjath Ramanujan Ezhuthachan is known as the father of the Malayalam language. The truth is that historical researchers have not been able to find a clear hereditary address. Not only the Malayalam language, but the question of who invented the script that exists in any language on earth today? I submit it to historical researchers.

The turning point of the Tulu script.

The Malayalam script is the Tulu script. The Malayalam script remained in the Tulu script until Malayalam language books were printed using printing presses. The Malayalam printed script that we see today is the result of the modifications that came about in the letter forms when the letters were carved for the printing press.

Malayalam letters can be found on palm leaves preserved in places like temples, monasteries, and palaces in Tulu Nadu. Malayalam script palm leaf manuscripts from the period from A.D. 800 to 1900 can be found here.

It is believed that the Tulu script originated from the language that existed in the Tulu Brahmin community and the Stanic Brahmin community, who studied the Tulu mother tongue and Sanskrit scriptures.

It is likely that Thunchathu Ramanujan was born into a Tulu Brahmin family or a local Brahmin who wove garlands for temple idols. Only by becoming a linguist who had attained perfection in education according to the Gurukula system could one translate great texts like the Ramayana. Education according to the Gurukula system was the ancient Gurukula system of education, in which education was imparted through home visits. At that time, children belonging to the family were educated in the homes of the Illam Mana families.

This is how Ramanujan completed his Gurukul education. Palm leaf texts are written on green palm leaves using a sharp iron nail. This sharp metal nail is known as a writing nail. In the 1960s and 1980s, human fates, or horoscopes, were written on palm leaves. The horoscopes were written in Sanskrit Malayalam and Sanskrit Kannada. The Tulu script was used on Sanskrit Malayalam palm leaves and the Kannada script was used on Sanskrit Kannada palm leaves. It is said that palm leaf writing existed in Tulu Nadu until fifty years ago.

One of the great wonders is that the Tulu script still exists among Malayalam writers in its pure form.! The first letter of each Malayalam letter is written in the Tulu script. If we exclude the printed script, or rather, if we set it aside, it becomes the Tulu script. That is, handwriting is the Tulu script. No matter how much effort is made, it is not possible to convert Malayalam handwriting into printing. That is, the Malayalam script or Tulu script contains strings of letters that cannot be written by hand and brought into printing. How did the Tulu script or Malayalam script come into being?! It can only be written in that way. One of the universal truths that is filled with Brahman is the Tulu script or Malayalam script.

Each letter may have been found for pronunciation or for words that are suitable for pronunciation. Like Malayalam pronunciation, the script suitable for Tulu for pronunciation is the Malayalam script. If Tulu language conversations are written using the Malayalam script and read with pronunciation, it will end up in pure Tulu language.

Now let’s get back to the arts.

The martial arts or Kalari of Tulunadu are the key to the great wonders of ritual, practice and medicine, mainly poison treatment, obstetrics, nerve treatment, natural treatment, and auspicious treatment.

Koloth Nadu- North Kerala is the present Malappuram, Kozhikode, Wayanad, Kannur and Kasaragod districts of Koloth Nadu. However, it seems to be shortened. However, it is complete under the name North Malabar. The legends of these lands are still popular through the works called North Songs. The North Songs and the characters in the songs are filled with the colorful background of martial arts.

Aromalunni, Kannappanunni, Palattu Koman, Thacholi Othenan, Thacholi Marumakan Chandu, Kadathaanadan Ambaadi, Puthuramputhri Unniyarcha, Thumbolarcha, Kadathaanattu Makam, Palattu Kunjikannan, Thacholi Ambu, Thacholi Ambaadi, Thacholi Chandu, Payyampally Chandu Chekavar, Palattu Koman, Ponnapuram Kottayil Kelu Moopan and others are heroic heroes of martial arts who are full of northern songs.

History records that training began at the age of seven. It is mentioned in the northern songs that after practicing eighteen techniques, one attains omniscience (transcendental meditation) in martial arts by coming to Tulu Nadu. In the Unniyarcha stories (cinema), one can also see the mention of Tulu Nadu Kalari. What is being said is that martial arts in Tulu Nadu are not born by birth. They are brought and exist. That is, just like they exist in China.

Bodhi Dharma

Bodhi dharma, also known as the Wonder Man, was a figure of supernatural power, a martial arts expert, and a miraculous healer believed to have arrived in China in 450 AD.

The man named Bodhi Dharma was our Tamil native. It gained popularity mostly through movies. But did you know that in countries like China, temples are built and Bodhi Dharma is worshipped....! Statistics indicate that there are about seven temples in China itself. Bodhi Dharma, who arrived in China fifteen hundred years ago, is still revered as a god and a guru among the Chinese. The world should learn from the Chinese how to protect and preserve the guru and the knowledge acquired from the guru through generations.

A practitioner begins his practice by bowing to his mother, father, and guru, receiving blessings through ritualistic rituals, and offering worship to God. Although it is a physical ceremony, this is the first part of meditation (concentration). Bowing before any ritual helps to bring subtle attention (sacred energy) from each nerve in one's own body to the sense organ. Have you been able to understand this scientific secret through experience?!!

The best meditation in meditation called meditation is the energy obtained from bowing to mother, father, and guru. This scientific secret is very simple. And it is also great.

The empirical science of meditation cannot be learned scientifically by studying great books. Only through experience can one understand the science of meditation, and that is the greatest experience. For those who practice meditation, the Gurukul series is the best school, the Guru is the guide to open the books that are closed within you.

Meditation is the emptiness of the mind in a state of no emotions or a state of intentional absence of emotions...! A state of nothingness in the mind. You can understand from this reading that this practice originated from martial arts. The practice of bowing down to mother, father, and teacher. In addition, the seven chakras (energy centers) of the human body are reflected in martial arts. Marma Chiltsa, Prakriti Chiltsa. Anugraha Chiltsa, and other healing methods also exist in martial arts. Among these, Prakriti Chiltsa, Anugraha Chiltsa. These are healing methods used in cases of poisoning, mental breakdown, and childbirth.

There are eighteen techniques in martial arts. Once these techniques are completed, the organ of knowledge (mind) will be able to achieve self-unity. This unity of mind is called the subtle state. Although all the subtle parts can be unified, the subtlest subtle parts can only be unified in the subtlest unity. That is, only when one is able to achieve the unity where one can hear one's own heartbeat, will the gurus impart the techniques that are necessary.

Marma therapy, naturopathy, etc. are methods of giving or transmitting subtle energy. In Marma therapy, the energy center called the Marma area is treated by pressing or rubbing it with fingers such as the index finger, thumb, and ring finger. The modern science of this method is acupuncture and acupressure.

Natural medicine is a method of treatment that is prepared according to the time and season with natural medicinal compounds such as green plants and aromatic substances, sesame oil, castor oil, mustard oil, roots, tubers, honey, etc. These methods of treatment are used for poisoning, stomach and postpartum treatments, and for Marma treatment. From here, Ayurveda is born, as can be understood more in the following pages.

Anugraha treatment is a form of treatment imparted through subtle techniques. In Anugraha treatment, treatment is performed using the index finger, thumb, eyes, Ajna Chakra, etc.

Only one who can maintain the consciousness of wisdom in the subtle state can practice subtle meditation. In subtle meditation, the body is separated from the five elements (energy). Or, it is a state of being separated. The physical forms or energy forms of water, air, fire, earth and sky are maintained according to the will of the practitioner. Subtle meditation or transcendental knowledge is the merging of the life force and mind of every cell in the body into the power of Brahma Shakti or Prana Shakti. During this time, auspicious treatments include storing and releasing Prana Shakti (Brahma Shakti) through the energy centers of the body, including the Muladhara Chakra, Linga Chakra, Navel Chakra, Hridaya Chakra, Khanda Chakra, Ajana Chakra and Sahasrara Chakra.

Nokumarma, Choontumarma, Devimudra etc. are subtle meditation (knowledge) methods and auspicious treatments. Pranic healing, Reiki etc. are the scientific part of this.

Nokumarma is a method of treating or preventing diseases by using Brahma Shakti through the third eye or Ajna Chakra. Nokamarma is a method of using Brahma Shakti to maintain the organ of knowledge or mind in a subtle state, to merge the prana of each cell in the body with the prana of the mind, and to enable the mind and body to be maintained in Brahma Shakti. Only one who has completed the synonymy of morality can achieve perfection in this practice. Otherwise, the result will be self-melting.

In this way, anyone can be treated and healed using the magic of the eye. However, only those who have practiced this technique can confront someone who has practiced it.

The same is true of the finger seal. The finger seal is a healing or protective seal that passes Brahma Shakti through the fingertips. The Devimudra or Anugraha Marma is a healing seal that passes through the palm of the hand.

In this way, a person who has practiced martial arts can read the thoughts of the person coming before him from a distance. [He can distinguish from a distance the one who is seeking help and the one who is harboring the nature of deceit] and he can also stop the person who is coming to attack with a weapon at a distance. That is, the attacker will die himself (suicide) or become mentally ill or physically ill. This happens because the body’s prana power is unable to withstand the Brahma power, the energy.

The special thing is that a person infected in this way will never attain salvation. The effect of this ritual is also known as Brahma Shapa or Brahmin Shapa.

Facts that cannot be discovered by the senses can be discovered through the perfection of martial arts; through transcendental meditation. Our Tamil native Bodhi Dharma may have been the one who foresaw this. That is, Bodhi Dharma may have discovered the truth through transcendental meditation that martial arts would not be useful in defending against the British Empire's conquest and rule of India.

Bodhidharma may have traveled to present-day China, realizing the ideal place to preserve the martial arts. (At that time, it was neither India nor China. It was a land without borders.) If so, we must believe that Bodhidharma's transcendental wisdom led to reality.

History records that during their one hundred and ninety years of rule over India, they looted thirty-five lakh "trillion" crores, destroyed customs, and spread sectarianism. It can also be seen in historical records that during the period between such acts, a mandatory ban was imposed on "martial arts". However, we can be happy and proud that the martial art that existed in the shadows of the countryside was not able to reach perfection due to famine, but it has been passed down from generation to generation and is still alive today in Tulu Nadu (Kerala, Karnataka) and Tamil Nadu.

Martial arts are today described as cultural heritage. But martial arts are not an ordinary cultural heritage.! Then what would martial arts be...!!

The first art born on earth in the wisdom of primitive man.! Martial art...!!

Humans, who are born from a race of men and women, are divided by caste, religion, color, language, and the beliefs and superstitions that have arisen from these. In this modern era, humans do not see each other as humans. It is the feeling of caste and religion that arises within them. But everyone has the inner sense that humans evolved from primitive humans. When we believe that we evolved from primitive humans, although the word evolution means "change," we have to painfully believe that it means division.

Even though we believe that primitive humans evolved to survive in this way, if we look closely, we can see that only the mind evolved.

Therefore, if the body does not change in line with the change in the mind, if the nails, hair, beard, clothes, and daily routines are left aside, and if modern facts and objects are avoided or not used, the image of primitive man can be seen in modern man himself.

We must believe that evolution did not occur from primitive man to modern man. Evolution occurred only in the mind. And that too only in the human mind. What I have said means that.

So, when the human mind evolved, the first thing that evolved was the martial arts. From the martial arts, the four gunas or four qualities evolved. Grihasthasrama, Brahmacharya, Vanaprastha, and Sannyasa. Let's see what these four qualities are like.

Grihasthanm (Family); Mother, Father, Guru, Worship of God; This is home. Home is the place where one lives as a member of the family, married, wife, children, head of the family. The three qualities that evolve from this home are Celibacy(Brahma charyam) Vanaprastham Sanyasam

If the Vedas (knowledge) along with the worship of mother, father, teacher, and God are all that is required in Brahmacharya today, then even exercise, health, and meditation should be included in Brahmacharya. The home is the protective circle for practicing and maintaining these rituals.

Mother, father, teacher, God, Vedas (knowledge), practice, health (Vedas), meditation, yoga, sensuality (material zeal), this is the heavenly world. Vanaprastha is the next step of Brahmacharya.

Mother, father, teacher, God, Vedas (knowledge), health (Vedas), meditation, yoga, sensuality (material zeal), transcendental meditation, liberation (moksha) This is the heavenly world. Sannyasa is the next step of Vanaprastha.

Which of the four ashrams should be chosen based on the knowledge that one can use one's own intellect and body to understand from material desires and combine it with practice. However, celibacy, Vanaprastham and Sanyasam evolve from the household. We will understand them in detail in the coming pages.

Through this reading, you can journey into the great wonders of how martial arts are the root cause of the evolution of the human mind or humanity.

While all living beings are born with weapons for self-defense, only humans are born unarmed. However, the weapon of intelligence was inherent in humans. Weapons were the first facts discovered by humans for the survival of life and the maintenance of the lineage. Various weapons, martial arts, and other things evolved from weapons.

Martial arts include worship, rituals, meditation, transcendental meditation, script, Vedas, Upanishads, Ayurveda, agriculture, arts, etc.

The education of primitive man was the training of weapons, meditation, and transcendental meditation. The training of weapons or physical training is taken to enable a practitioner to maintain the senses of the mind, the subtle state, without retaining them in any kind of emotions, but in the secret point of the mind, the sense of knowledge, called concentration or subtle state.

Meditation should be practiced from this concentration. Chakras are also mentioned in meditation. Transcendental meditation is practiced through meditation. Chakras are the energy gates of transcendental meditation. Although they are the entrance gate of the prana, the energy centers (chakras) and energy work according to the will of the mind (the faculty of knowledge) only in transcendental meditation.

Transcendental meditation or transcendental knowledge is the way that man has found to discover facts that are not detectable or inaccessible to the senses. From a particle of Brahman to the universe, it is possible to discover them through transcendental meditation. The Indian sages were the ones who achieved Siddhi in this way.

The education of primitive man was martial arts, meditation and transcendental meditation. Every human creation was created according to the evolution of the human mind. This includes rituals; rituals, meditation, transcendental meditation, script, Vedas, Upanishads, Ayurveda, agriculture, arts, etc.

Who invented the script according to the language is an unanswered question even today. It is believed that the oldest language is Sanskrit. The cultures to be observed are inscribed in the Indian cultural language (Sanskrit) script. Therefore, early Indian education is a cultural study.

The study of Indian heritage, such as rituals, ceremonies, meditation, transcendental meditation, script, Vedas, Upanishads, Puranas, Ayurveda, agriculture, arts, etc., can be combined by analyzing the mysterious point of mind in two directions simultaneously. That is, when we say that Indian Gurukula education was a system of learning that could be experienced both spiritually and materially, our Indian Gurukula education system is the same. Spirituality and materiality are mixed.

Gurukula education is the process of studying in the guru’s family home and imparting education by visiting the student’s home or ancestral home.

In Indian Gurukula education, it is helpful to move the point called the mind in two directions at a time. That is, as is stated in the scriptures. This fact can be understood in my humble explanation of Yakshagana, Bhagavad Gita, and martial arts. Thus, let us see how our health heritage called “Ayur Veda” helps us move from one point called the mind in two directions.

Ayurveda.! Our health heritage.!!

Ayur means health, and health means a mind and body that are free from disease, both physically and mentally. Veda means knowledge. Ayurveda is the name given to the knowledge or discovery about health. It can be understood from Ayurveda that health problems are caused by fluctuations in the energy form of the mind or body in the fusion between the mind and the body.

Ayurveda tells us that health is affected by three factors: bile, phlegm, and vatham (Rheumatoid) (the three doshas). bile means saliva. Did you know that it is produced by the liver? Saliva is the water-fire that digests the food we eat. The liver digests and maintains it with its watery form and fire nature.

When the bile or saliva produced by the liver mixes with the food that enters the mouth, it is possible to understand whether the food is suitable by the variations in taste. When there are variations in the production of bile or saliva by the liver, health problems arise. The nature of saliva changes due to fever and cold. When eating food at this time, sweet food may seem bitter or bitter food may seem sweet. At such a time, the liver may not be able to maintain the property of digesting all foods or the chemical fire in the saliva. It is at this time that Ayurveda (Pathyam) advises avoiding certain foods.

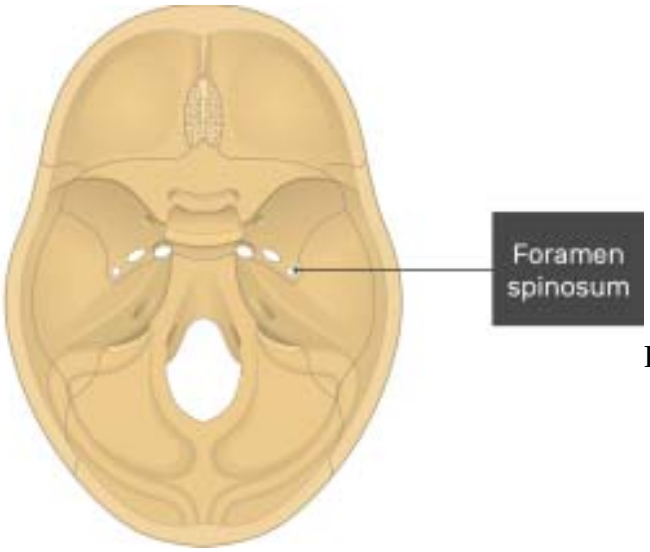

The milk teeth that grow during childhood grow when they are seven years old or older and the new teeth fall out. At this time, at the age of fourteen, at the age of twenty-one, before the first menstruation. During the seasonal change (seasonal change) two or three times a year, as the sun approaches the evening, some people get fever. The cause or causes, diseases, germs or symptoms of the fever that is caught in this way cannot be found with scientific and technological instruments. The fever increases and decreases from afternoon to evening, and from evening to night. But towards morning, that is, from two o'clock in the morning until morning, the fever decreases slightly and the seems to have recovered. However, after noon, the same thing will happen again, and this may continue for three or four days.

In this phenomenon, Ayurveda emphasizes the health and protection of the brain by advising rest and diet for the body. That is why Ayurveda recommended taking the medicine in the morning on an empty stomach, before meals.

In a day that starts in the morning, a person's first meal provides energy to the brain. But one very important thing to note here is that the brain does not get all the energy from the breakfast meal, only the amount of food that reaches the stomach first. That is, the brain gets or receives only the energy of the part of a banana that is first bitten, chewed and swallowed.

It is also recommended to completely avoid milk and milk products during this time. Because milk is a complete food. Milk contains all the benefits that the body needs. It is recommended to avoid it because the vital fire to digest it is less likely to be present in saliva or because the liver cannot retain it in bile. However, Ayurveda recommended taking medicine in the morning for any illness. This is to maintain the health of the brain and protect the liver.

Phlegm; The area where the kapalam (Fictional image) nerves that carry energy from organs such as the mouth, eyes, nose, and ears meet is called the kapalam. Although the kapalam is also called the skull, the kapalam is the area where the nerves that carry energy meet. Look at the picture.

If the energy from food is not suitable for absorption when it reaches or enters the brain, this energy descends into the skull and turns into phlegm. However, before it turns into phlegm, it is expelled through the nose, and in some cases through the ears, in a discharge, and in some people's it descends down the trachea and gets stuck at the junction of the trachea and esophagus. This energy, which is trapped in the organs that are part of the respiratory system, mixes with the air circulation of the respiratory system and its form changes to phlegm.

It can be coughed up and spit out, or it can gradually reach the stomach. Although it is excreted through the intestines along with the digested food, the energy form remaining in the phlegm that has gone down into the stomach will re-enter the brain and continue the downward cycle. As a result, the eyes (itchy), nose (sneezing), ears (itchy), throat discomfort (cough), shortness of breath, and phlegm will recur. Water, bad odors, and certain types of food can cause problems. Gradually, the blood may become impure and the external and internal organs may become exhausted.

Rheumatism: Rheumatism is a condition of weakness, whether complete, partial, or mild, of the body. Although fatigue is a phenomenon experienced by the body, the root cause of fatigue is not the body. Problems in the brain, whether mild, severe, partial, or complete, can cause rheumatism.

Due to the mental distress experienced or coming from family or surroundings, the inability to adapt to life circumstances, and the inherent character traits and vices, emotions are created by oneself and stored in the mind as energy, and the inability to neutralize this energy causes the mental distress known as depression.

Thus, the brain is unable to neutralize the energy of the emotion arising from the state of depression, and the brain suffers from a slight, partial, or complete loss of function, resulting in the death of a part of the brain, which prevents energy from reaching the organs controlled by the brain. This can also happen due to an accident.

Of the three doshas, Bile, Phlegm and Rheumatism, Bile causes physical diseases, Phlegm causes physical and mental diseases, and Rheumatism causes spiritual (mental) diseases.

In this way, the root cause of the diseases we experience is the material world. Bile- material food, water, ! Phlegm- material food, thought water, air phenomena.! Rheumatism- are the qualities and demerits that need to be analyzed in our own knowledge of material objects, or the result of qualities and demerits, which cause the Rheumatism phenomenon.

Ayurveda is a book that can be experienced both spiritually and physically and can be achieved through liberation. Ayurveda is a cultural work or book that has been written in the culture. In Ayurveda, which means the knowledge of health, it is possible to experience the spiritual and the physical in harmony.

Now let’s get back to martial arts.

The most important of all wealth is education! The wealth of education is the source of all other wealth. That is why it is said to be the most important of all wealth. Similarly, martial arts are a science.

“Warrior” is the wealth or fortune of a warrior, a brave man.! That is, “health” is the “wealth” or fortune of a “warrior”.

The full meaning of this word, which is a combination of practice, ceremonies, steps, rituals and the first step towards an art style based on tradition, is martial arts.

The ancient Indian education system had an educational tradition where martial arts were practiced from the age of seven or early adolescence. Even before the Gurukula education system, the tradition of Gurukula education itself was born from martial arts.

Moreover, the fact is that even the name "education" originated from martial arts.

In Sanskrit, education is defined as Vidya-Abhyasam. Vidya+Abhyasam="Vidyabhyasam", Vidya = understand. Abhyasam = practice understanding. This is education. Education means to understand and practice.

As mentioned earlier, the four orders of life (Grihastha) namely Brahmacharya, Vanaprastha and Sannyasa originated from the martial arts. It is said that the family of children about education starting from home observes "Brahmacharya" and purifies the Brahma power by performing Brahmaradhana.

Brahmacharya is the practice of Brahman with the realization that Brahman is the soul; it is born from a power that pervades the universe, starting from me and you and ending or merging with it..!

Those who worship the facts, objects, and powers (idol worship) that are born from Brahman reside in the (grihastha) household.

Water Air Fire (Sun) Earth Sky With all these physical properties, the form of every object is born from Brahman. For example, the body. The body, which is born from the physical properties of water, air, fire, earth, and sky, and the spirit (mind) that is maintained by the power of Brahman, the life of a human being remains as long as it is merged. This fact is called life span.

Fire is the cause of the death and rebirth of the forms of existence - water, air, earth, and sky. That is, the moisture contained in every blade of grass that dries and withers in the changing seasons, as well as in everything, everything - rises as steam due to the heat of the sun, cools and turns into clouds and rain, and is reborn. This happens because of the fire called the sun. In this happening, the form, color, nature, birth, and death of any object change, and this is called rebirth.

When the water contained in everything changes into various forms, qualities, colors, virtues, and vices, when it dies as steam, when it cools and turns into clouds, or when it is reborn as rain, water is born pure. In this way, all cosmic phenomena are reborn pure. It was from this realization that man composed the first book on earth, the Rig Veda, in praise of fire.

Thus, the power that purifies even the purifying fire is “Brahman”. So who purifies Brahman..? [I have mentioned it in detail in the book “Atmarupa Advaita”. However, I will explain it simply.] As mentioned earlier, even God wants to take human birth. This means that it is possible to experience Brahman or to experience the facts existing in Brahman only through human birth.

(In Brahma Shakti) Through transcendental meditation, the human mind, the soul, can travel in a moment the distance that light travels in a year. For example, Indian astronomy. It is recorded that Jupiter travels through our solar system with eight hundred moons and Saturn with three hundred moons.

Indian astrology has been written through transcendental meditation for ages. In this modern era, only about seventy of these planets have been discovered through scientific and technological tools. Modern science still needs to discover many more by applying technological tools.

Also, facts like planetary orbits, eclipse definitions, and things like applying blackening to food to survive the radiations during eclipses are miracles discovered by man through meditation. Even these radiations have been discovered, understood, survived or overcome by man through transcendental meditation (in Brahma Shakti). so what is the relationship between man and Brahma...? With this question, who purifies Brahma.!? You can guess the answer to the question.!

According to Hindu belief, through sacrifices, offerings, good deeds and good thoughts, the Brahma power on which the universe exists can be purified into the brain, which weighs 1300-1400 grams and is the instrument of knowledge, mind, intellect, soul and spirit.! So what will be the nature of the power called Brahma.!?

The smallest ant that can be seen with the naked human eye; Using the intelligence that is implemented through the Brahma power that passes through the brain, which is the instrument of its mind, intellect, soul, and spirit, it finds prey, mate, habitat, and residence and lives its life. It is one of the wonders of our earth or nature.! May modern science, scientific technology, and instruments be able to discover how the facts and objects inside the head of this ant function. May this book be helpful!!

But what is being said is how delicately and gently the miraculous power of Brahman, which is capable of purifying even fire (the sun), passes through an ant, or through the ant’s prana, intellect, and soul.

Brahma, which can purify even fire, and which becomes soft and subtle when transformed into the soul of an ant or a particle, can be purified through thought, intellect, and action only through human birth. This fac tdistinguishes the man from all other living beings.

Thus, Brahmacharya is the practice of purifying Brahman through the knowledge, thought, intellect, and action that is the path of virtue. In this way, while remaining in this state, Vanaprastha is the offering of the spiritual energy (soul) and the physical body to nature (the five elements).

“Nitya Brahmacharya” is the purification of Brahman through the study of virtues, the renunciation of sensual and mental pleasures, and the dedication of life.

Thus, by purifying Brahman through knowledge, study of the virtues, thought, intellect, and action (austerity), discovers the facts that exist in Brahman, the highest form of asceticism (rishi).

Although Grihastha(Household), Brahmacharya(celibacy), Vanaprastha(exile), and Sannyasa (renunciation) are classified as four ashrams, the four ashrams do not exist in order. They are self-selected according to the time (age). In of the Grihastha, Brahmacharya, Vanaprastha, and Sannyasa, education was through martial arts. Ancient Indian education system.

Brahmacharya Vanaprastha Sanyasa This is how the Gurus lived their lives. Teachers in today’s language.

A boy: Brahmacharya (Brahmopadesha, Brahmin) is accepted at the end of childhood or the beginning of adolescence. Grihastha (family, children) is accepted at the end of adolescence or the beginning of youth (family, children, renunciation is eternal Brahmacharya.) Sanyasa is accepted at the end of youth or the beginning of old age. Vanaprastha is accepted at the beginning or middle of old age. Thus, the four ashrams pass through the life of a person.

Even before the Chaturashramas, the script was a means found by man to record the facts discovered in the ancient Indian (Puranic) educational system, that is, through the martial arts, meditation and transcendental meditation. Just as it is possible to neutralize the emotions arising from mental agitation through physical exertion, the Devanagari script is a script that was born in the culture of nature, in the perfect and pure meditation and meditation through the martial arts, without remaining in any emotions through mental agitation.

I wonder how great the language and culture that existed before the birth of the script would have been. Because; the meaning of the words in the script can be understood as fact. For example, you may have heard that (Sanskrit,Pranamam= obeisance,English) I bow to you.! In this; I keep my soul and mind pure and purify the mind and soul of the person who receives it in the form of energy, thus exchanging ideas with each other with self-satisfaction. The fact or truth contained in the word “Pranamam” obeisance

At the time of offering “Please accept my obeisance”, the soul, life force, mind, thought, purity of character, emotion arising from culture, and the sweetness of sound waves emanating from the vocal cords are purified.! Thus, culture that protects the sacred life force and spirit are the facts in the small word “obeisance”.! It can be understood that the word “obeisance” contains not only meaning but also fact.

In Devanagari (Sanskrit) language, it is not only a meaning but also a fact. In Sanskrit, Ambujam means (thamara) lotus, in Malayalam. in sanskrit Ambujam means Up+Ja = Ambujam. Up=Water Ja=Born. born from Water. A flower is compared to a woman or becomes a woman (which maintains tradition, attracts a mate).

Although the word Ambujam is seen as a meaning, it is actually not just a meaning; it stands alongside the fact in the name. Similarly, Sanskrit means written culture.! It is a combination of the name of the language and the name of the script, which is not just a meaning, but a fact.

With the birth of script, Gurukul education, a tradition of transforming written facts into lessons for children, came into being. From this, education was divided into two parts. Namely, knowledge and practice. Knowledge means learning by understanding, and practice means putting what is understood into practice. This is Vidya+Abhyasam=Vidhyabhyasam=education

The method of memorizing knowledge developed from understanding and studying written texts as lessons.

The result of what happened in this way is this; Man, who, through meditation and transcendental meditation, without being immersed in emotions, combined training and martial arts, led his mind to subtlety and super-subtlety, and by acquiring the literacy of education, moved his mind towards material analysis.! Such was the end of the Satya Yuga, the “Krita” Yuga.

The Satya Yuga, also known as the Krita Yuga, lasted for seventeen lakh twenty thousand years. Then, in the Treta Yuga, the tradition of education and training became completely separated. However, until the end of the Treta Yuga, literacy and martial arts were taught with equal importance.

As in martial arts, so in literary education - devotion to mother, father, guru, worship of God, the five elements, the Vedas, self-dedication to worship the soul, good thoughts, good deeds, salvation, etc. “Education” or understanding, despite being able to do so, failed to sanctify, purify and merge the understood energy or the energy emanating from the mind with the soul.

The reason for this failure is that the mind, the energy form of the soul, has to travel in two directions at the same time: spiritual (meditation) and physical.

Therefore, the “spiritual power” energy of the soul, prana, and mind, which can be obtained through spiritual meditation, was being lost through the descending form of 400 years in the Krita Yuga, 300 years in the Treta Yuga, 200 years in the Dvapara Yuga, and 100 years in the Kali Yuga.

Ignoring the importance of maintaining the energy of the soul power, man moved towards analysis by weaving emotions and going through material knowledge. The reason for the shortening of life is that this energy cannot be experienced with the material body.

Man has passed through or entered by giving importance to sensual pleasures of the mind and sensual pleasures of the senses of action, [and man enters in this way or in the same way today], but although it was possible to achieve self-satisfaction through such educational system in the Treta Yuga, it caused the soul’s strength to wane. Soul strength means the strength of the soul, the mind, the life force, which is merged in the body.

The soul enters or is allowed to enter the natural art of “art” from the analysis of the mind through the study of the scriptures called education. It was in the Treta Yuga that the soul was placed in all the arts and instruments of art, including painting, sculpture, architecture, mathematics, dance, gesture, song-music, musical instruments, and other instruments.

That is, during the twelve lakh ninety six thousand years from the beginning to the end of the Treta Yuga, the immortal soul was placed in the arts of painting, sculpture, drama, dance, song, music, and musical instruments that were born through human knowledge and wisdom on earth. That is why art and the instruments of art exist even today.

Thus, the spiritual power that could be acquired through separate study of knowledge and martial arts, or through meditation and transcendental meditation, was diminished. However, because martial arts and knowledge were purified and merged with the soul through fasting, the energy of the soul merged in the body became stronger and became the immortal soul. (A particle of Brahman existing in Brahman) The soul that gained power in this way is the son of Vayu, the Veera Hanuman, the devotee of Sri Rama,

Rudravatara Anjaneyan

Lord Shiva; Veera Hanuman is the child entrusted to “Pavan” by Vayudev. Vayu Bhagwan, filled with joy and happiness on receiving the child, sincerely “merged into the soul”, and upon receiving it, became a part of Pavan’s soul. Therefore, Hanuman became Pavan’s son.

Later, Vayudev, seeing Anjana, a monkey woman, performing penance to the Lord for the sake of a child, merged the child into Anjana’s womb and said, “This child is a part of Lord Shiva, and the Supreme Soul “Lord Shiva” has entrusted me with giving it to you.” Pleased with this, Anjana took Vayudev’s advice and gave birth to the child. Thus, Anjana’s son became Anjaneya.

Anjaneya, who happened to see Sri Rama, who was saddened by the separation of Sita during his exile, comforted Sri Rama and became a servant and later a savior, messenger and devotee. Anjaneya is the only person who has become synonymous with devotion. “Devotion” should not be experienced with the mind! It should be experienced with the soul,!! that is the meaning of Sri Rama standing in the heart of Rudravatar.

Once Lord Rama asked thus. I am happy that you, who are stronger than me, are serving me as my devotee! You are my servant, messenger, servant (helper) and protector, and you are the incarnation of Rudra, wise, knowledgeable and strong. Standing thus, you serve me. In your friendship with me, I am able to experience both the depth and height of self-satisfaction. But what is the meaning of performing such sacrifice, swami anjaneya..!

Anjana Putra's reply was as follows. "Karma is sacrifice." Karma is to be performed and sacrifice is to be experienced. Seeing the karma you perform in the sacrifice you experience, I have dedicated myself to it.! Therefore, I worship your karma. Then, saying, "I also know your consciousness, O Lord," he went with Sri Rama to Mahavishnu, Parameswaran, and then to Brahma through transcendental meditation and returned. Rudravatara Anjaneya explained as follows. You and I have originated from one power! We merge in that power and are reborn from it!. We have experienced that power now, and it will be possible to experience it in the next life. That wonderful secret of transcendental meditation was imparted to Sri Rama and he knelt down. Sri Rama understood and practiced it through experience. Lord Sri Rama, who was absorbed in the self-satisfaction he experienced in this way, accepted the words of Pawanaputra with self-satisfaction. Therefore, Anjaneya had to become the Guru of Lord Sri Rama as well.

Once, when Anjaneya was praising Sri Rama, Narada Muni, who was passing by, played the melody of Anjaneya's praise on the tambourine in his hand. Anjaneya and the sage, immersed in this tambourine, experienced that praise as if they were in meditation. At this time, the rock on which they were sitting, immersed in the tambourine, melted and merged with it. While Anjaneya was mixing his voice with the sound immersed in the tambourine, the rock melted and the sage sank into that abyss, and Anjaneya and the sage did not know this happening.

Even though the sage was fully convinced that the powerful Anjaneya could free him from the pit, the sage did not ask for it.!

The sage said to Anjaneya. I will sit here and chant the Shruti..! Repeat the praise of Sri Rama.

So the sage started the Shruti, Anjaneya started singing in praise of Sri Rama, the rock became as before, and the sage came out.

The sage conveyed this spiritual experience to the entire divine world. Thus, Anjaneya became the successor of Shruti. Since music exists in Shruti, Anjaneya became the originator of music.

Thus, according to Hindu belief, he lived in a visible body from the Treta Yuga to the end of the Dwapara Yuga, giving equal importance to education and practice, acquiring Abhyasich meditation and transcendental meditation, material knowledge, and wisdom, and he remains immortal by maintaining his body invisible in the Kali Yuga.

Now let’s come to the Dwapara Yuga. The Dwapara Yuga is said to have lasted for eight lakh sixty four thousand years. In the Dwapara Yuga, there was a great loss of strength in combining martial arts and education. Let’s see how that happened.

Dwapara Yuga: Knowledge and Ignorance

Dwapara Yuga; is famous for the book (grantha) Mahabharata and the war!

In this way! By going through the book, you can understand the war in detail.! The martial struggle of war.! For what?! The Mahabharata is a scientific book that helps you analyze your own thoughts with the question and answer.!! In this, the Pandava side, the Dharma side, and the Kaurava side, the Adharma side, are the heroes or fighters who exist on the battlefield with visible bodies.

On the Kaurava-Pandava side, when combining martial arts and Gurukula education, that is, study and training, or when combining them, the characters that immediately come to mind, who are still popular as the greatest martial artists today, that is, in this Kali Yuga, are Guru Dronacharya, Bhishmacharya, Duryodhana, Karna, Bhima, and Arjuna.

The main disciplines practiced in warfare were the arts of the arrow. By practicing or by practicing such disciplines, significant changes occurred in moving towards meditation and transcendental meditation.

What is impossible for the senses, or what is not possible, is achieved through transcendental meditation. For this, transcendental meditation is achieved by merging the prana power of each cell in the body with the power of prana (mind, soul) that is merged in the body. Even the five elements have to become slaves to obey the command of the one who is in this meditation. Thus, in the practice of knowledge, there was a significant loss of strength in Dwapara Yuga compared to the Treta Yuga.

That is, as time passed from Treta Yuga to Dwapara Yuga, a change in the human mind, or a single ignorance, caused a significant decrease in the power of the soul. What is knowledge and training for!? Or why practice?

The Kauravas, Pandavas, their teachers, and the supernatural powers gathered on the battlefield, who roared on the battlefield with the greatest strength of limbs, strength of weapons, strength of knowledge, strength of wisdom, strength of meditation, and strength of soul, were not able to achieve perfection through the training of war and knowledge. They failed to meditate on the knowledge they were practicing and to merge it with the soul. What is meant by this is that it caused the loss of the power of the soul.!

But Lord Parthasarathy is a man who attained perfection by giving equal importance to martial arts and education. He acquired the knowledge and proficiency to practice in this manner during the incarnation of Lord Rama in the Treta Yuga.

Once, Bhagwan. As per the wish of Anjaneya, he regained his form of Sri Rama through transcendental meditation. Similarly, Bhimasena, the incarnation of Veeranjaneya, expressed his desire to see the form of Treta Yuga to Veeranjaneya. Anjaneya turned Bhimasena away, saying that it was not possible. Anjaneya knew the truth that Bhimasena had not been able to combine physical and spiritual strength to receive the Brahma power that one should receive while continuing in transcendental meditation through the Abhyasamuras.

Proud of his strength, the giant scolded the monkey who was sleeping on the road and asked him to move. The fearless monkey said; I am tired due to the aging of my body which had to travel through time! Therefore, I cannot move my tail which is blocking your path..! O strong man born on earth, I need your help..! Please move my tail out of your way and continue your journey. The monkey said to the giant.

But Bhimasena, who failed to move his tail, asks who you are. Anjaneya replied thus. If it had been possible to achieve perfection in the knowledge that has been assimilated - there would have been no need to search for who I am, Bhimasena! Because of thinking oneself strong, the lessons that should have been absorbed from the knowledge that was learnt have not merged in the soul but have disappeared in ignorance. It is not possible to achieve anything with the knowledge that is assimilated in ignorance in this way, son..!

“Although the essence of subtlety seems to have been said to destroy Bhimasena’s ego, if we pay attention to subtlety, we can understand from Anjaneya’s words that Bhimasena’s teacher himself was wrong.”

From the knowledge he had learned, Bhimasena could not move on to meditation and transcendental meditation (knowledge of the soul). If he had been able to move on to transcendental meditation, Bhimasena would have been able to recognize Anjaneya, who was a part of his own soul.

That is why Anjaneya said, “If you could have attained perfection in the technique of combined wisdom, there would have been no need to inquire who I am, Bhimasena!” When Bhimasena admitted that he had failed to move his tail, Anjaneya realized that Bhimasena was not strong even through physical strength. Because of this, Anjaneya withdrew from offering the incarnation of the Treta Yuga to Bhimasena, saying that it was impossible.

On the battlefield, Arjuna becomes exhausted by self-contemplation. The reason for his exhaustion is that he has to fight against his own guru (Dronar), his grandfather (Bhishma), and so many other gurus and friends. Therefore, Arjuna, who is mentally exhausted, refuses to fight.

Despite many instructions from Lord Krishna, Arjuna did not yield to any of them. This is Arjuna's stubbornness. Isn't it wrong to fight against the Guru who has placed weapons in my hands?!

The Lord says this. This is Partha's ignorance.! What is the meaning of a Guru full of knowledge and wisdom, forgetting Dharma and joining the side of Adharma...!?. Krishna began to say.. Partha...! Guru Dronacharya, who promised to give karma training and continue in karma, broke his promise. You should know Guru Dronacharya, who broke his promise in this way. Partha.! For this, be awake with meditation and knowledge..! Touch me and look at your opponents on this battlefield.

Touching Krishna, who was in transcendental meditation, Partha saw his opponents as corpses, having lost their souls (without soul power). Krishna continued. When the self-consciousness, which is merged in the soul, is transgressed, the soul is also lost, Partha..! The decision taken from sensual pleasures, namely, the self-consciousness, is merged in the soul. In this way, the soul, which is merged in the self-consciousness, cannot be forgotten, Partha..! Therefore, the soul is destroyed when the self-consciousness transgresses or forgets.! But even this truth has been forgotten by Guru Dronacharya.

Krishna says. Partha..! The soul is formed by the actions it performs. By the duties it has to perform. By the sacrifices it has to experience...! If it loses itself by leaving the body... that means it has abandoned Dharma (continues in mistakes).

Partha...! Therefore, the war you must wage is not against your close friends, relatives, or teachers...! It is against the dead bodies that have lost the purity of the soul and the power of the soul by violating the precepts in this way...!

Arjuna attained self-realization through the visions and experiences he had while touching Krishna from transcendental meditation, through Krishna's discipleship and words. Arjuna understood that it was through Krishna that he had attained perfection in the art of war (transcendental meditation) and that to maintain this perfection, it was not war but dharma that was necessary, and therefore dharma had to prevail. Thus, the battle of Dharma was won.

As time passed from the “True” Krita Yuga to the Treta Yuga and from the Treta Yuga to the Dwapara Yuga, the spiritual power (energy or lifespan of the soul) associated with the knowledge and practice of the Gurukul that was passed down through the ages decreased to 400, 300, 200, etc.

Knowledge and practice; Why should we practice...! Is it because we do not ask ourselves the question? Is it because we have forgotten knowledge? It is the ignorance or mistake that occurred to the teacher or the disciple at the very beginning of the Treta Yuga that has caused the human life span, the strength of the soul, to be significantly reduced.

Temples(kshethra) are the way that man has found to regain this spiritual power, i,e. to strengthen the soul or to get rid of emotions. “Kshayam Trayate Iti Kshetram” (Sanskrit) The word “Kshetra”Temple means that one who is destroyed by the mind (emotions) becomes free.!!

At the end of the Dwapara Yuga and the beginning of the Kali Yuga, temples became very popular. With that, the spiritual power (the energy form of the soul) that could be learned from martial arts, meditation, and transcendental meditation, was separated from the one called martial arts into three. That is, knowledge, practice, and worship. (Temple Darshan)

In Kali Yuga, people began to move in a way that was divided into education, ritual, and worship. In education and practice, there were divisions between those who studied education alone, those who studied war alone, those who studied education and worship, and those who studied war and worship. “Education in worship is the study of performing sacrifices, offerings, and worship.” From the combination of these studies, caste, rituals, and practices arose.

In this, the word “Varga, Class” later evolved into various castes. For example: “Yadav” Yadav means warrior. Yadav is a word that has evolved from “warrior”. Who is capable of fighting a war with fighting skills? He is a warrior or Yadav. The warriors who are part of the lineage of King Yadu are known as Yadav.

The warrior-Yadav, who had to build and maintain the temple and make the Brahmin, who purified Brahma, a part of its protection, became a Kshatriya. The one who never allowed these three duties to be neglected while being a king, “Brahma, Brahmin, Kshetra”, is a Kshatriya. The warrior became a Kshatriya because he had these three duties.

Whoever is able to see and understand carefully, he becomes a Shudra. That is, the workers.

A Shudra is someone who is able to be subtle in the work they do. For example, a farmer, a construction worker, a woodcutter, etc. Shudras are only those who are able to see the subtle vision and understand it in advance. Those who are not able to do so are not Shudras. It is explained in detail for easy understanding.

A Shudra is one who, over time and through his time in action, has been able to acquire spiritual and physical thought and analysis in thought. That is, one who is capable of subtle vision. Today, thousands of years old temple structures that can be seen in our India and neighboring countries exist, and the construction workers in these are Shudras. Those who worked with subtle understanding. While working, looking at the limbs, members, and their organs (colleagues) is called spiritual thought, and looking at action and action is called material thought. In this way, whoever is able to understand thought and analysis in detail is a Shudra. That is, one who has been trained. Similarly, a woodcutter sees the direction and impact of the tree he is cutting and saves himself. In this, my salvation is spiritual thought, and karma or work is material thought. Whoever is able to see this detail is a Shudra.

Similarly, Vaishyas mean those who are loyal. Those who are loyal mean those who do not oppose, those who accept the king's orders, subjects.

Who are the Vaishyas? Those who accept the king's orders. Who should accept the king's orders.!? The answer is Vaishyas, Shudras, Kshatriyas, and Brahmins. These are the subjects. This is the Chaturvarnya. Chaturvarnya is the varnya that includes the king of a dynasty. He who does not allow him to decay is a Kshatriya. He who has trained to purify Brahma becomes a Brahmin. He who has been able to find a new path and truth from the knowledge and practice acquired becomes an Acharya. He who has been able to see clearly is a Shudra, and he who stands firm in the king's command and accepts it is a Vaishya. In this way, Kshatriya means today's IAS, IPS... development.. Brahmin meditation, hypnotic, psychology, counseling development.. Acharya physics development.. Shudra spiritual and physical training development. Vaishya supporters... development. And so on. It was never a caste or a religion. It was a culture that emerged. For example, Guru Dronacharya is a teacher of martial arts and a Brahmin in purifying Brahma.

Dronacharya's son Ashwatthama is a close friend of Duryodhana and is on the side of injustice. This fact can be seen in the Mahabharata.

Ashwatthathama did not acquire the ritual education to purify Brahman from his own father, who was a teacher in knowledge and a Brahmin in practice. Therefore, Ashwatthathama did not become a Brahmin. However, he was known as the son of a Brahmin.

The trick used by Krishna to mentally weaken Drona during the Mahabharata war was to make him lie that Ashwatthatma was dead. In reality, what the Lord said was true. Because he had joined the side of injustice or had accepted injustice, Ashwatthatma did not have any spiritual strength (spiritual energy)

In a person standing like this, the energy of the mind becomes stronger, but it cannot be felt for long while standing in the body! That is, like a ember of a fire that is about to go out, rekindling.

If this happens to Drona during the war.! Krishna was afraid that Arjuna would be in danger or that the unjust would win.!!

The reason for his fear was that Krishna could not be an armor bearer. Krishna was afraid because he had promised his elder brother, as per his elder brother's wish, "I will not touch any weapon in this war."

Guru Dronacharya, who believed that his son Ashwatthathma was dead, became mentally exhausted. Guru Drona, who was overcome with emotion, asked Arjuna to kill him, saying that he did not want to live without his son. Arjuna made it clear that he was on the side of Dharma and that it was not in accordance with Dharma to kill a person on the battlefield except through war.

Hearing this, Guru Dronacharya said to Krishna. "I did not want Dharma to win or Adharma to win! Vasudeva..!" I participated in the war for the happiness, joy and protection of my son.

In fact! Guru Dronacharya had advised Duryodhana that this war was unrighteous and that he should withdraw from the war. Then, Duryodhana used a trick to lure Drona, who had withdrawn from the war, into the war. He tempted Drona's son, Ashwatthama.

Duryodhana charmed Ashwatthama by telling him that the Kauravas would win this war, that victory was certain, and that he would make you viceroy the moment the war ended. But for the victory to be complete, it is essential that our guru, your father Ashwatthama, join the war. Duryodhana said! Ashwatthama thought about Duryodhana's words for a moment.

Friend, there is no need to worry about such thoughts..! Your father, Guru Drona, is the Guru, Acharya and Brahmin of the Kaurava and Pandava factions at the same time. Who can take up arms in the battlefield against a Guru who practices the art of knowledge in this way? Or even if it is possible, wouldn't it be injustice..! I know very well, friend..! Arjuna or the Pandava faction would never take up arms against their own Guru and commit injustice..!

Perhaps Krishna dared to commit atrocities. But I know that Krishna swore before his elder brother Balarama that he would not take up arms in this war. Therefore, victory in this war is certain, Ashwatthathma..! From today on, make every effort to bring our teacher Drona, your father, to the battlefield prepared to fight..!

Ashwatthama, who was immersed in temptations, kept tempting his father Drona for war.! Finally, Drona was ready to fight.! Believing that his son had died in the war, not knowing that he had been deceived, the saddened Guru Drona told this to Krishna. Should he give importance to Dharma and Adharma in the sacrifice he is making for his own son Ashwatthama? Vasudeva..! Which father does not want to see his son happy..! Moreover, if he becomes the Viceroy, his own son will get luck, happiness and protection. If his own son is protected, then I too can achieve "Nirvrithi" (salvation, death) later..! I wanted..! But not just a wish.. Vasudeva..! Isn't it my duty as a father to equip my son with the duties that should protect him and help him fulfill his aspirations?

If Guru Drona withdraws from the battle, Guru Drona will realize that Ashwatthama is not dead! Realizing this danger, Krishna became angry and said:

Guru Dronar what kind of dharma are you performing for your son...!? If the techniques you have mastered and passed on had been perfected, this battlefield could have been avoided. (The meaning of Bhagavan's statement was that transcendental meditation could be achieved by everyone.) Moreover, he would not have had to suffer the sorrow of losing his son in this way, remaining ignorant. (What was said was that he could have seen for himself in transcendental meditation that his son was not dead.) Krishna said to his guru-like Drona, "If he had taught his own son the techniques he had learned, the knowledge he had gained from them, and the rituals he had practiced, he would not have had to sacrifice for his son." (The lesson learned from this is to pass on tradition to generations) Realizing that Krishna knew the secrets that could be experienced through practice, Guru Drona accepted his mistakes and accepted death on the battlefield.

All this has been said or explained so that we can understand that the separation of class, tradition, caste, custom, and status is the end of the Dwapara Yuga and the beginning of the Kali Yuga.

But the clan pride known as vaCsam or vaCsîyam had emerged from the very beginning of the Dwapara Yuga. However, it evolved into caste only towards the end of the Dwapara Yuga. That is, at the very end, after the Mahabharata War.

The widows, children, and parents of those who died in the war left their homes in grief and traveled in various directions..! Now we have to start from scratch..! As the saying goes, we have to build our lives from the beginning..! The thought and the hope that never fade can be built on a land without borders.! They did not travel with the understanding that..!

On this earth where nothing can be achieved, or even if achieved, it cannot be taken with it after death..! Because of the knowledge gained by man, those who were separated from animals by desires, concepts, dreams, and emotions, were at that very time separated from each other by ignorance.

Whoever does not attack! (Drona, Bhishma, Pandava)! Turn him into an enemy. It was also what brought them to the nature of passing through the Dwapara Yuga and existing today. Or the truth is that it has come down through generations and exists today.!

According to Bhagavata Shastra, the war, which began and ended with the destruction of Sanatana Dharma, claimed the lives of twenty-two lakh people in the eighteen-day war.

Those who participated in the war, those who died, and those who lived were all subject to various forms of martial training, education, rituals, and customs. They had no caste, religion, or ethnicity. Everyone had the same dharma. They practiced mother, father, teacher, devotion, friend, brotherhood, and respect as their dharma. This is called Sanatana Dharma. Let me repeat it again to understand it clearly. Sanatana Dharma is a dharma that existed in all rituals and customs: mother, father, teacher, devotion, friend, brotherhood, and respect.

This Dharma originated from the martial arts. During training, one should view the opponent as a friend and practice unwavering discipline (oneness) by protecting and preserving the limbs of the warrior, so that one can easily practice meditation and transcendental meditation and become adept. (Guru’s advice)

Thus, the science and principles of martial arts are to keep the physical and mental energy obtained from the combined force pure (so as not to arouse feelings towards others), to respect others, and to avoid generating unwholesome feelings in them due to my own karma.

Even before the birth of martial arts, in the Satya Yuga, man had neither spiritual nor material pleasures. This is primitive man.

Primitive man had no idea of himself (personality), no idea of what was mine, no facts, no objects! Just like today's animals, man was a member of their family.

But; it is the same today. It is man who has separated man. Even today, animals have not been able to understand the fact that man has separated. Then what is the difference between man and animals.!? The answer to the question of intelligence will come to mind. But animals also have intelligence. That is why any animal in any country understands any language and becomes a slave to the love of man. Then what is the bond between man and animals.!

Part - 2 : Humans among creatures

Just as animals of one species are enemies of animals of another species, so humans were enemies of animals and animals were enemies of humans. But they were not enemies because of feelings originating from the mind. Nor was it hostility that was maintained for a long time in order to attack and acquire objects or facts in their possession. So what is hostility? Why did they become enemies?

Enmity is the direct action or intellect of the prana residing in the body when hunger is experienced. In a person who experiences the prana (life) residing in this way, the feeling of enmity does not arise from the mind. Therefore, the "victim" does not become the enemy. In the intense experience of hunger, the being that should be the victim is only a food.!

The person being attacked or the victim sees the attacker as an enemy. Because he is protecting his own soul (atma) even though he has not been able to recognize it himself.! There is a reason for this. When fear and pain merge, he has to experience unbearable pain and the feeling of fear is born unconsciously.

There are two types of animals that eat to survive or survive. One is herbivores and the other is carnivores. The enemy and friend between these are the third type, omnivores. Omnivores are those who eat both plants and meat. But which type do humans belong to?

While all animals, except humans, are born with weapons for self-defense, only humans are born unarmed. As each animal grows, its body parts, which grow into organs, substances (poison), gases, and colors, eventually become weapons for attack and means of escape. For example: claws, teeth, poison, colors, colors, fur, as well as abilities such as running, jumping, flying, and swimming, each animal is born with special abilities as a result of creation.

That is, if any living being falls into water without training or practice, it swims to safety. Or it can escape. This is the mission of creation. But in this situation, humans need to learn to swim to be saved.

Although humans maintain their lineage as they pass through the earth, being born, living, and dying, the earth abandons the human or the lineage of the one who has passed away in a change or miracle that occurs on the earth.

Just as living beings swim without knowing how to swim, when natural disasters occur, all living beings except humans escape either by understanding the danger or by the help of an unknown force. In this miraculous phenomenon, the earth and the help of an unknown force abandon humans.

This means that man has not yet been able to establish a connection with the earth and its natural phenomena. Man is unable to understand the phenomena of the earth or nature due to the ignorance of taking refuge in the unseen God from the earth that can be seen and experienced. Or, as it has been said, man forgets!!

An unseen God does not mean that God does not exist. God is a power! A power that can only be experienced through human birth! The earth must also be ready for humans to experience that power. That is, the power that is present in the earth must be purified. Only if all these elements of earth, water, air, fire, and sky (emptiness) can be experienced with purity, can the power of God be experienced.

This can be easily understood like this! When the body is polluted, when it decays (by disease, illness), the soul leaves the body. When the body is pure, the soul remains. When the soul (mind) is polluted, the body abandons the soul (rheumatism). The body dies because the body has abandoned the soul. The condition that occurs in rheumatism is that the soul cannot travel with the mind and the mind cannot travel through the body. When the soul (mind) is pure, the body remains. In this, the death of the body is the power of the earth, and the death of the soul (mind) is the power of God.

But what man does is forget the earth and call upon God. This means he forgets the body and prays to the soul.

Humans, or today's humanity, are unable to understand through experience the idea that a body is necessary for the soul to exist, or that a body is necessary for worshipping God.

Despite the fact that man has believed for ages that God will give everything, despite making others believe, and despite praying, God has not yet given anything to man! But man does not remember what God has given.

God has designed the body in such a way that it allows or protects the irreplaceable sacred soul (child mind) in terms of purity, and also allows us to experience the earth, nature, the universe and God. Forgetting this, we again rely on God. We cannot achieve anything with this. All that is given is the earth, or nature. If we pollute nature and continue in nature, what is the nature of nature! We will have to continue in that nature.!!

During the day, all things melt. At night, all things cool. Since the heat of the day is stronger than the cold, all objects melt. It's colder at night, so everything gets colder. All objects and facts change into the nature that has the most power over them. Don't you know that this includes our body? Thus, the body can only exist in the way that nature exists. If we cannot maintain our bodies in the natural state, how can we worship God? To worship God, we need purity of body, purity of fasting, and purity of mind.

At the beginning of a day, first of all, physical purification (morning rituals, bathing), fasting purification (type, order, time of food), and spiritual purification (mind, soul, spirit) [Since I am a pranic healer, I have been able to understand the problems that are happening in today's environment.]

In today's situation, it is difficult to cleanse the body in the morning. The water used for bathing is not clean. Due to constipation, acidity, and urination problems, only a handful of people are able to cleanse the body.

Breakfast.

Change in the nature of food; chemical, artificial, stale, mixed. A food item is grown in chemical fertilizers, artificially preserved, stored for a long time, artificial flavors are added to enhance the taste, and eaten before breakfast after taking medicine for acidity. For those who practice this, the type, order, and time are not relevant here.

However, food that is nutritious and digestible is best. Try to eat it with devotion (worship is good for bringing attention to food, understanding the nuances of taste, and enjoying it)

Time; After sunrise in the morning and from 12 noon to 1 pm is the best time. It is also best to eat dinner between 7 and 8 pm at night. Now that we understand the purity of fasting and the purity of the body, let's see how to purify the soul. When the soul establishes a bond with the body, it awakens as the mind. That is, awakens from sleep. The mind awakens the prana. The prana awakens the body. Now let's explain. Sleep is when the soul is away from the body. Look at the picture.

When the soul is distant, the sleeps.

This soul energy awakens from sleep when it makes contact with the body.

When the soul touches the body, the body awakens.

When the energy of the soul enters the brain, it awakens as the mind. Or becomes the mind.

All images are fictional.

The energy of the soul travels to the brain and radiates and merges with the energy of the body. This merged energy is the prana and the mind. Thus, the prana awakens the body. The mind, the prana and the soul are one energy. (Breakfast is for the brain) What travels from the brain is the prana. What travels from the prana is the soul.

This is how the soul becomes the mind, and the mind becomes the soul! The brain is just an instrument that transforms the soul into the mind and the mind into the soul. That is why I say that we should try to eat with worship. But let us see how this purifies the soul.

The sleeping body It wakes up with the mind. That is, the mind wakes up first. Then the body wakes up. From twelve o'clock in the afternoon to one o'clock, and sometimes until two o'clock. It is possible to work or function with this awake mind. You may think what a miracle this is. So read carefully.

The energy of the body and the energy of the soul will be in an ascending merger from morning to noon. Therefore, the decisions made by the mind can be implemented by the body. (Work is meant) After noon, the body will get tired. The merger between the energy of the soul and the energy of the body will be in a descending order. Therefore, the body will get tired. Even if the mind says it, the body will hesitate. When this happens, rest is the mind's decision to protect the soul and the body.

Then, Prana should be given importance. Discomforts like fatigue, pain, etc. occur in the body and mind. This happens because the body fails to deliver the energy of Prana to all parts of the body. Breakfast and thought play a very important role in this phenomenon. This is one of the secret reasons why Ayurveda prescribes medicine on an empty stomach in the morning.

The soul clashes with the mind, the mind with the body, and the body with time (the nature of nature).! From waking up in the morning to going to sleep at night, the phenomena that occur in the combination of the soul, mind, and body cause excitement, fatigue, and restlessness.!! (Similarly, man exists from birth to death. Childhood, adolescence, and youth, the facts that originate in this ascent are lost in the descent of old age.)

The waking prana and body merge with the mind, and slowly separate from the merger after noon and enter sleep at night. It is in the complete separation that occurs during sleep that the prana pervading the body becomes the mind, and the mind becomes the soul.

The great miracle of the phenomenon of life is that the soul awakens as the mind, merges with the prana, and becomes the soul.

In the same way, birth, death and rebirth [This has been explained in detail in my first book, Atma Rupa Advaita.] It is the emotions that pollute this Prana, Mind and Soul. But without the birth of emotions, man cannot exist. Therefore, to attain liberation from emotions, practice Sanatana Dharma. Remember your mother, father and Guru with devotion, worship God. Preserve friends, brotherhood and respect. Lead your life with purity of body, purity of fasting and purity of soul.

Let's go back to the diet of primitive man. What can an unarmed man do? We can understand that even today..! Because even today, man is born unarmed...! Therefore, we can guess. That is, the food ranged from edible fruits of shrubs to fruits, berries, leaves, and flowers that fell and could be picked from large trees. That is, a complete vegetarian. (But even today, the human stomach has the ability to digest only vegetarian food) The human stomach does not even have the ability to digest food that has been cooked (on fire) or roasted (in the sun).! The fact is that. Now let's return to the topic.

When completely vegetarian man survives three ages and reaches the fourth age, what miracle, power, or weapon does man have to grow like this? What would it be!

Man has two main weapons that exist in the same energy. As you might have guessed, one is intelligence, but the main weapon is not intelligence, but memory. That is, man's weapon is intelligence, and the energy of intelligence is memory. Intelligence is born from the foundation of memory. Therefore, intelligence should be described as a weapon, and memory as a deadly weapon.

For example: Man tames an elephant. This can be considered as feelings of mercy, caress, love, etc., existing in memory in his relationship with the elephant. Since man is a herbivore, we can believe that they are from one family.

But humans do not have the size or weight of a whale's brain, which is about the size of thirty-six elephants. Humans use their intelligence to go to sea and hunt whales.

What has been said is that the days pass as the intellect born in memory is retained in memory and recalled again and again, and this is repeatedly perfected. The intellect born in memory is analyzed for days, that is, it is transformed into a deadly weapon. Therefore, memory is a deadly weapon and intellect is a weapon.

Therefore, education=(Vidyabhyasam) is the means and protection for retaining memory and exercising intelligence. Although memory is born from the mind, the source of memory is the soul.!!

Vidya = to understand, Abhyasam = to practice what is understood. In this, Vidya is the mind (five senses) and Abhyasam is the body (consciousness of action). Thus, the energy gained through education is protected by the soul. Therefore, realizing that it is better to preserve education in a pure or untainted soul, the ancestors began to teach children themselves.

Here it is represented as the unblemished soul. This means that while the mind goes through experiences, the child's mind remains pure because it is not polluted by the experiences captured by the senses. The aim of early childhood education is to fill this pure mind or soul with knowledge. The tradition of education was started by the ancestors who clearly and completely understood this. The education system we see today grew in this way, but it evolved from the Indian Gurukula system of education. We are forgetting this truth.! But what we need to know is how knowledge evolved from early man!.!!

When hunger is generated or experienced, the mind's activity is to seek food! Humans, who were involved in finding and eating food, first understood hunger and the time of hunger. Hunger is an experience that humans can experience even today. To understand the severity of hunger, just eat a banana for dinner. You can't watch the sunrise hungry. Or make banana stew and eat it. You will understand the severity of hunger.

Primitive humans, who ate only fruits or vegetables, were able to use the weapon of memory to understand the time of tomorrow's hunger. Sunrise is still a problem for those who eat only vegetables. Because it is difficult to overcome hunger.! Since the recurrence of hunger occurred every day at sunrise, it was believed that the cause of hunger was the morning!. It was because the memory of the experience remained in man in this way that man traveled to the intellect in search of a remedy.

To overcome hunger, man worshipped for food. To get rid of severe hunger, they started worshipping the sun, believing that the cause of hunger was the dawn or the sun. By worshipping the sun, man was able to live to some extent on the energy of the soul.!

Even though no kind of emotion is born, man can live to some extent on the energy of the soul even in the present situation.

Worship arose from the experience of hunger in the Satya Yuga, and from the idea that the cause of hunger was the dawn or the sun.

According to the calculation of the period known as the Treta Yuga, rituals, weapons, weapon systems, etc. were acquired through meditation and sun worship for twelve lakhs and ninety-six thousand years. That is, all objects and things evolved from the primordial foundation of the facts we see today.

During the Treta Yuga period, the first book on earth, the Rig Veda, was composed in praise of the sun. Thus, the first book on earth, the Rig Veda, was born in praise of the sun and fire.

But even before the Vedas were written, the knowledge and techniques that were born were preserved by seeing and hearing and passed down through generations. I have not been able to find out whether the martial arts were written as Vedas in this way. However, the martial arts, the first art that was born on earth with weapons born of the wisdom and knowledge of man, have been passed down through the ages and generations and have survived in the Tulu land. A part of it is the Tulu Nadan Kalari “Talim”

Talim: Tulu Nadan Kalari

Kalari is a complete martial art. It emerged from the specific analysis of each aspect of Kalari, including karate, kung fu, judo, talim, exercise, meditation, yoga, and transcendental meditation. The concept of education and the name education came from understanding and practicing this.

The dharma that a person who is getting an education should practice is called Sanatana Dharma. The things that should be practiced in Sanatana Dharma are devotion to mother, father, and teacher, worship of God, protection of friends and brothers, and respect for elders.

Part 3 Tulu Nadu: The land of legends.!

Kotti and Chennayya are historical figures, heroes and idols of worship known or remembered in the history of Tulunad.! These are known by the singular name Kotti Chennaiyya. Kotti and Chennayya were protectors of the Pallava (Ballal) dynasty, and the Kotti Chennayyas practiced a combination of traditional medicine and martial arts under their guru Sayahna Baidya (physician)

The birthplace of the Koti chennayyas is the legendary land of Tulunad, Padu- male Gajagiri, located in Puttur taluk of Dakshina Kannada district in Karnataka state and adjoining the northern part of Kasaragod district in Kerala. Here, temple worship, puja, prasadam and anna prasadam (lunch) are held daily.

Mother Deyi Baidyati (a woman who is a medical scientist). Sister “Kinni Daru”. Married in Yernmuru, Puttur taluk, Dakshina Kannada district. The five hundred year old thatched house where Kinni Daru moved after marriage is still preserved like a heart left in the history of Tulunad, or like the beating of a heart waiting for someone. This house is open to everyone.

The experience I had when I visited this house was indescribable. So I can't write! I request you. When looking for great heritages, you should visit this place at least once in your life. Because that too is a small empirical science.! A science that can only be experienced.!!

As I thought about this house full of meadows, its surroundings, its style, and its centuries-old history, my thoughts unknowingly drifted away from me. Later, I felt like I was in a world of imagination, or rather, a world of concepts..! Since the forms born in the imagination are not a question, I did not have to find an answer! Maybe that is why my imagination got a little rest..! I think.

What experiences this girl named Kinni Daru must have gone through in her life..! This thought arises when I stand in Kinni Daru's meadow yard...!! Kinni Daru's history or life happened in such a period..!! A.D. 1500 was a time when even embers had to be kept safe. meaning there were no matchboxes. Such a time.

Among the preserved items, I was able to see spoons used in the Kinnidaru ritual, pottery, a grinder used for grinding, and other items. Perhaps it was because of the touch of Kinnidaru that all this has remained vibrant for centuries..! But this wasn't what I was looking for. A storage box that girls usually like. A box used to store charcoal ink, glass bangles, stone necklaces, etc.! I wanted to see that. Unfortunately I couldn't see it. This caused me deep sadness. Because; if such an object existed, this object would have become one of the most beautiful legacies in the ages to come. Anyway, I began my return journey with a prayer from the soil where Kinnidaru's feet touched.

A temple has also been built at the Samadhi (death) site of Kotti-Chennaiyya, two kilometres away, and is worshipped once a year with a festival. Darshan and worship are permitted here every day.

One thing you can see here is the Kottichennaiya “Garadi”. In Malayalam, Garadi means “Goda”.

Garadi is a place where martial arts are practiced. Kotti and Chennaiyya trained from this Garadi to practice martial arts, practice Satyadharma and Kula (traditional) rituals, and purify their mind and soul by merging them in meditation and transcendental meditation.

The Kotti and Chennayya Theyyams are the last forms of worship to emerge in Tulu Nadu. This means that no forms of Theyyam have emerged in Tulu Nadu since then.

The art of Theyyam is also unique to Tulu Nadu. In addition, the areas extending to the states of North Kerala and South Karnataka, which are adjacent to Tulu Nadu, also remain in the customs and practices of Theyyam art. Malayalam and Tulu are the spoken languages that exist mostly through Theyyam art. However, the majority of Koti Chennai Theyyams, from the songs to the (Uriyatta bhasha) Pronunciation language, are completely Tulu.

Theyyam and Komaram (Komaram in Malayalam means velichchapad. Tulu, Kannada poojari)

Behind the power of Theyyam is the human spirit. But not entirely the human spirit. What could be the energy and spirit behind Theyyams..! How were Theyyams and Komaras born in Tulu Nadu.! Let's understand that miracle.

Theyyam is an art that originated in the rituals of martial arts. Although from a physical point of view, Theyyam is seen as an art, from a spiritual point of view, a spiritual power or the energy form of the soul is at work behind the art of Theyyam. Since the art of Theyyam is performed as a divine ritual, the Kavus, houses, temples (thanams) are decorated with Theyyam-kola forms.

All the communities practicing Hindu beliefs in Tulunadu worship Theyyam in various forms in the art of Theyyam. However, in almost all places, there is a Vishnu Murthy and a Gulika. The Theyyamkettu festival ends with the worship of the Vishnu Murthy first and then the Gulika. However, it ends with the tying of the Vishnu Murthy and finally the Gulika. It is believed that Gulika is the king of Theyyams. Therefore, Gulika is known as Gulika Raja.

However, since the custom of sacrificing chickens in the Theyyakolams persists, the Brahmin community has shifted this custom to the forests. The Brahmin community pays the necessary expenses and goes to the forests during the ritual to pray. Therefore, it has become a protection for the existence of forests and woodlands.

But even before the move to the forests, forests and worship existed in Tulu Nadu. The Theyya kavus and Naga (cobra)kavus (kavu means forests) in Tulu Nadu are the places where the practitioners of Tulu Nadankalari mentioned in the northern songs would come to practice and worship until they completed their training.

For those who have practiced meditation and transcendental meditation for the treatment of poison, the Guruvaryas of Tulu Nadan Kalari install Naga idols with their prana power and train and enable their disciples to worship (serpents) and detoxify them. Therefore, the snakes in Tulu Nadan "Sarpakkavu" are the most powerful God and the visible form of God.

The principle of Ayurvedic toxicology is to counteract poison with poison. If someone is bitten by a snake, the venom will be neutralized if the same snake bites them again. The techniques humans use to bring back a snake that has once bitten them were learned from the snake forests of Tulunadu. This was trained in two ways. One is through transcendental meditation in martial arts and the other is through transcendental meditation with Vedic mantras that contain related facts.

But over time, as man abandoned martial arts and moved towards materialistic thoughts or pleasures, man could not combine the purity of the soul with the purity of the vows learned from martial arts training. So what happened was that man could not attract the energy (Brahma Shakti) that could be obtained through Vedic mantras. Because of this, man lost the knowledge that even the venom of a snake is immortal. (According to modern science, snake venom is protein)

From snake idols erected for poison cures to guarding snakes, in the transcendental meditation of martial arts, masters protected their own prana in Brahma energy, invoked sacred prana (Brahma energy) from Brahma, and enshrined prana in idols. Just as a perfect wise man or one who is capable of transcendental meditation activates the sense of knowledge through sensual pleasures! In the same way, the consciousness of snakes and idols will activate the fruit of the intellect of the wise man who is in transcendental meditation.!! That is, who is the mischief-maker standing among a thousand people? He can be searched for and harmed in a moment. Similarly, where on earth is this dangerous person? This idol consciousness can paralyze his thinking or intellect in the very moment.

Most of the idols in the serpent caves in Tulu Nadu were installed by people in transcendental meditation. If they come here and pray, those who suffer from physical and mental illnesses that cannot be cured by medicine can quickly get relief and freedom from their illnesses if they seek treatment. However, they should choose trustworthy doctors and use the medicine.

The snakes and idols in the serpent caves are not fierce deities like Theyyam, the energetic embodiment of the human soul. This is a form that humans absorb directly from Brahma Shakti. If worshipped with virtue, humans can quickly get rid of diseases, deadly illnesses, and mental problems.

The Naga Caves (Bana,Kadu) and Theyya Caves (Bootha Bana) are said to be very dangerous places. There is a reason for this. The life of the conceptual forms of the idol is given through transcendental meditation achieved through practice. There are also snake caves in Tulu Nadu , which are the life-giving of Vedic mantras.

In the Vedas, the prana is brought to a gentle state and installed. That is, the prana (Brahma energy) is installed in the idol installed through spiritual knowledge through material energy. But idols are installed from the energy (Brahma Shakti) that is unified through transcendental meditation. Just as there is mind, prana and soul in a body! Similarly, the prana is installed in the form of an idol. But today, prana installation does not exist in transcendental meditation, because no one practices martial arts with the emphasis on receiving unified Brahma Shakti through martial arts,

No one can do anything to the idols and the powers of the idols enshrined by the martial gurus (martial practitioners who have combined transcendental meditation). Those idols can only be purified through ritual.

Origin of Theyyams

Theyyam is a ritual form that originated in the Kali Yuga. The science behind its origin is also a great miracle. The energy (power) called Theyyam is the human soul itself. But the truth is that it is not an ordinary human soul. To understand it easily, we have to go to the Treta Yuga. Only Anjaneya was able to perfect (practice) knowledge and martial arts. Therefore, Anjaneya became Mrityunjaya (the conqueror of death).

When Anjaneya studied knowledge and martial arts, the deity or power he worshipped was the sacred energy “Brahma”. That is, he worshipped the energy (Brahma) that could be experienced through practice. But as time passed into the Dwapara Yuga, the Guru himself made a mistake in learning and teaching knowledge. He worshipped one and learned the other. Therefore, the education system, which is based on the principle of “change is the law of nature”, has been changing since then till today.

Learning means understanding things that can be put into practice. Only one person born on earth has been able to understand and practice what he has learned. That person is Anjaneya.

The energy that takes form when we learn and understand is purified through action. This pure energy is the soul. This soul and the body in which the soul resides have no death. This is Anjaneya. (Treta Yuga)

Education (Martial arts education), which was a means of attaining spiritual bliss through study, was transformed into a means of material pleasures in the Dvapara Yuga. I applied the knowledge I had learned to others. Therefore, I had to give up the immortal soul that I had understood, practiced, and purified. Bhishma and Ashwattha.!!

However, although martial arts were passed down and perfected in the Kali Yuga, the practice of martial arts began to decline as the Vedas, mantras, rituals, and practices were added through literacy. Humans, realizing that Vedic mantras and rituals lead to spiritually experienced power through Vedic education (scriptural education), deviated from the rules of martial arts.

“Education” (vidhyabhyasam): Forgetting even the meaning behind the words knowledge=vidhya and practice=abhyasam, man became wise by excluding practice in the name of education and associating knowledge with it.

By understanding and studying the written texts, one can experience meditation and transcendental meditation with the mind.! But since the energy obtained through the exercise of the body called Abhyasam was not applied, the body did not have the ability to receive the energy of the mind, prana, and soul, or it was lost. That is, the energy formed when understanding as a lesson would continue to increase, but the body would not be able to receive this energy formed in the mind because it was not purified by practice. Therefore, when the body turns to external and internal problems and diseases, the life force called prana decreases. Or causes it to decrease. Thus, the decline of the spiritual power of life, called lifespan, has arisen from the evolution of the mind. The Krita Yuga was 400, the Treta Yuga was 300, the Dwapara Yuga was 200, and the Kali Yuga was 100, and today it stands between 60 and 50. The reason for this happening is that we have forgotten ourselves, “What is the benefit of the work I am doing?” It happened before the end of the age. It is said that when we put aside practice in education and focus on memorization, we strengthen the body through exercise. This means combining meditation to reduce the overload of the soul and mind and exercising to increase the strength of the body.

The reason I explain is not just for my hometown, Tulunad. It is for the benefit of India and the welfare of the people of the world.

Now let’s move on to the wonders.

Martial arts existed for generations among those who could not attain literacy. Although meditation and transcendental meditation could be fully integrated through practice, they were not able to understand and experience the importance (Brahma) of martial arts because they were deeply rooted in rituals, rituals, and worship. However, the complete parts (parts) of martial arts existed in Tulu Nadu until the British imposed a mandatory ban.

Martial artists used to defend themselves against the British soldiers who came with weapons using techniques like Nok Marma Choondu Marma. This is why a mandatory ban was imposed. Nok Marma Choondu Marma techniques are practiced in transcendental meditation. ! After the death of the practitioners, their souls are the power that remains in Theyyam art.

That is, those who firmly believe in truth, dharma, and karma, through the martial arts they practice, through the concepts and practices of the divine forms they believe in, move towards meditation and transcendental meditation, and the soul of the martial arts practitioner and the power of the divine power merge and become one form. After death, this prana shakti (the power of the soul) remains a part of Brahma. No one born on earth can do anything with this soul energy! Because it is a part of the form or energy of Brahma.

Only those in whom the soul exists as a result of birth and siddhi can or have the right to merge with Brahma. The soul merges with Brahman only after going through all these experiences of childhood, adolescence, youth, and old age and attaining samadhi (death).

Thus, if those who are united by martial arts, exercises, rituals, and practices die (death before the end of their lifespan), the soul cannot attain liberation and rebirth. Being a very powerful soul, if this soul enters the Bruna during the period of embryonic development, the bodily life force absorbed in the Bruna body will weaken and (physical death) will occur. Therefore, it will take ages to attain rebirth.

Martial arts practitioners who attain a pure soul through truth, morality, and action cannot attain liberation and rebirth if they die prematurely. These souls incarnate in the form of energy, or remain a part of Brahma energy, to attain liberation. It is this spiritual energy that enters the spiritual body of the Theyyam artist while performing Theyyam.

The theyyam forms, fierce in form and gentle in appearance, stand in the greatness of Sanatana Dharma through truth, righteousness, and action, and through mother, father, teacher, devotion, worship (meditation on God), friendship, brotherhood, and respect.

Like the truth of Brahma, it can be seen in the form of the Theyya and the power that resides in it. That is, when the power of Brahma passes through a human being, it has the power to purify even the universe, and when the same Brahma power passes through an atom or an ant, it becomes so gentle and delicate that the ant can feel it. Similarly, the energy form of the Theyyas has a fierce nature and gentleness in consciousness.

Theyyam is a divine art form of Tulunad that can be experienced in the form of an incarnation with a gentle appearance before the worshipper.

One hundred and forty Theyyams (deities of the Kalari series in Malayalam) are believed to reside in a shrine or traditional home, only a few are worshipped in disguise. The remaining spirits are purified by worshipping them and protecting and sustaining their spiritual energy.

That is, the meaning of one hundred and forty is that although one community gives importance to only one god that is worshipped, there is a worship spirit (of the Kalari gods) that is worshipped by all communities. They will gather together during prayer time. Or they will be invoked.

Because. All the souls of the Theyyams originated from premature death. Premature death means death without experiencing old age.

The soul of a human being, which has become as pure as Brahma energy while still alive, when it leaves the body at death, merges with the spirit of the idol it worshipped and remains as an energy (shakti).

Thus all the Theyyams are formed in the afterlife. Being based on the same ritual as the martial arts, when a Theyyam is performed, all the fierce spirits are invoked or gathered together. These are the one hundred and forty Theyyams or Kalariparambara gods.

In my Tulu homeland, where I was born and raised, each community has a traditional place of origin called a tharavadu or illam. Illam means blood group. Illam was created to avoid blood ties between a man and a woman who are getting married. If the marriage is through blood ties, the child or the mother may die during childbirth. Therefore, the ancestors used to say that one should not marry within the family to avoid blood ties.

All the communities in Tulunadu have turned towards the Illam. Each community and each Illam in the society has its own Tharavad, Thanam, the deities and rituals worshipped in the Thanam. In addition, there are temples for worshipping idols and temples for performing Theyyam worship.

My family temple is the “Kayyil Tharavadu” Tharavadu in Bovickanam Iriyani Peradukka, Kasaragod district. Such a temple is also known as Thanam, Tharavadu Veedu. Similarly, each temple of each community is under the communities, Thanam Veedu or Tharavadu Veedu, Illam (blood relationship) is maintained as a branch of it.

Sri Naalvar Deivasthanam Kanathur Nair community, Kadakam Sri Patarkulangara Bhagavathy Temple Ezhava community, Kadakam Sri Chirum Babagavathy Temple Chettiar community, Sri Koragathaniya Mookambika Gulika Temple Koliyadukkam Harijan community, Sri Muchilode Bhagati Temple Perna Vaniya community, etc. There are temples for all the communities to worship. According to Hindu beliefs, there are Illam, Thanam Tharavad and there are also Theyyams and rituals conducted by the community members and other communities are invited. However, lamps should be lit in these places without fail every day.

According to the historical legends of Tulunadu, I was able to understand that the ancestors of all communities were practitioners of martial arts. Or so I believe.

“Kurathiamma” is a form of the goddess worshipped in temples, (thanas, tharavads) and some houses. If the lamp in the houses where Kurathiamma was worshipped was late, people would say, “Isn’t there anyone to light my lamp..!?” Thinking it was Kurathiamma’s voice, they would light a lamp and seek forgiveness and pray. Thus, there was a time in Tulu Nadu when Kurathiamma, the lamp and guardian of the houses, was worshipped in homes. Although the custom of lighting a lamp to Kurathiamma was abandoned in some houses, this is still done in a few rare houses.

Kurathi Amma Theyyam

One of the most beloved stories in the legends of Tulunadu is the story of Kurathiamma, the guardian goddess. It is said that she sings songs to children to sleep, cleans the yard, threshes rice, and makes rice when the family is not around. Kurathiamma is a form of God or a spiritual force believed to be a member of the family living in a house. Kurathiamma protects the family members like a child. It is also said that if the members of the family who worship Kurathiamma get hurt due to a minor injury while working, they will hear Kurathiamma crying that night.!

Kurathiamma, who has a fierce appearance and a heart-shaped appearance, is an incarnation of the divine spirit from the Kalari tradition.

Each of these Theyyams, incarnations or legends, has a sad story behind their emergence. If we examine the history of each Theyyam, we can understand the legends that emerged from death as Theyyams.

The power or energy of the ghostly forms, called Theyyams, is the power of the soul, transferred through martial arts and transcendental meditation, allowing worshippers to merge their own mind and soul with the form they worship, becoming self-aware and divinely empowered.

It is not just the Theyyams of Tulunadu that have emerged from sad stories. All the Theyyams existing in the states of North Malabar (North Kerala) and Dakshina Kannada (Karnataka) have emerged from untimely deaths. Kathivannur Veeran, Kotti Chennayya, Panchuruli, Kallurutty, Chamundi, Kadankot Makam, and their children in North Kerala. All the Theyyams are steeped in the story of untimely deaths

Komaram (velichapad, priest)

Komarams are the traditional disciples. Komarams (priests) are the fortunate ones who are able to feel the call of the Guru's spirit during the time of distress caused by the Guru's death. They are the ones who integrate the Guru's weapons and the idols they worshipped (Vishnu, Shiva, Kali, Bhadrakali, Naga) and the rituals and practices. The forms that appeared in the consciousness of the disciples who heard the inner call of the Guru's consciousness became the Theyya forms. Those who heard this inner call, those who made the forms, passed the rituals down from generation to generation and later became a community.

The main deity in the Theyyakolams tied by each community in their homes and ancestral homes is called Dharmadaivam, Theyyam. Dharmadaivam is the first to be worshipped. It is also called Kuladaivam, Kuladaivam. Dharmadaivam means the dharma that a person who worships God should follow, therefore all the communities in Tulunad believe in Sanatana Dharma, devotion to mother, father and teacher, worship of God, friends, brotherhood and respect. This Dharma, which originated from the martial arts, is part of the truth and energy of the spirit merged with the power of the demonic forms called Theyyam. Therefore, one who believes in Dharma or worships the god or Dharmadaivam is steadfast in protecting the eternal Sanadana Dharma through karma.

"The God of Justice who comes forth when called." The spiritual essence behind the art of Theyyam manifests itself in the form of energy before those who remember it with devotion. He will take care of those who face injustice from the Dharma, and he will also lose the sense of direction of those who continue in injustice.

In order to bless the devotee who worships Theyyam in the form of a Theyyam or a Kolam, the Theyyam artist must remain very pure. Because the consciousness of the Theyyam form imagined by the worshipper will merge with the artist's life force. If the artist's soul or body cannot accept this life force, the Theyyam Kolam itself will lose consciousness. Only an artist who has attained perfection through physical purity, fasting and spiritual purity can attain perfection by accepting the concrete consciousness. Otherwise, he will first lose consciousness and immediately defecate. When the soul enters a fetus in the sixth month, the first thing that happens is the excretion of feces. The same will happen to the Theyyam artist if the soul is not pure.

Therefore, Theyyam artists must practice the Dharma or Sanatana Dharma of the martial arts, which is devotion to mother, father, guru, friendship, brotherhood, respect, etc., and must remain in society with purity of mind and body.

Because if a member of the family who lights a lamp in the Kalariparampara or a person who has achieved wealth by birth sees Theyyam standing in the form of a mask as a tangible soul, the spiritual power of Theyyam will enter the body of the artist standing in the form.

The Dharma God of one family will be the same as the Dharma God of another family.! The scientific secret behind this. There will be disciples from many communities under one Guru (Master). For example, a martial arts master who worships Mahavishnu remains pure in his mind and soul, but if this Guru dies before the end of his life, the soul becomes part of the power of Vishnu. Therefore, this soul power cannot merge with Brahman and attain salvation. It cannot be reborn as a human form. Energy remains as a form. His disciples from many communities can see this soul and receive instructions on how to perform rituals and ceremonies. That is not possible in these ages! No one learns martial arts to practice meditation and transcendental meditation.

Vishnu Moorthi Teyyam

Thus, the Dharma Gods of Tulunadu emerged from the practice of the Dharma of the Guru's words by various communities under one Guru, and as a Dharma and Dharma God for many clans. The tradition that grew through the art of warfare (kalari parampara) is that all the Hindu believers in Tulunadu worship the Theyyams as clan gods.

Parts of the Kalari (Martial arts)

Karate, Kung Fu, Judo, Talim, etc. are the parts that existed in the martial art called Kalari. In this, Kalari means clan (family), and karate, Kung Fu, Judo, Talim, members of the clan. When Karate, Kung Fu, Judo, etc. returned from all over the world, a part of the martial art called Talim survived in Tulu Nadu. The exercise routines called “Talim”, which are the main part of the martial art that exists in Tulu Nadu today, are not given enough attention.

“What is exercise? Why should I exercise? What are the physical benefits of exercise?” There is no point in answering questions that arise from ignorance and doubt. Answering questions that arise from ignorance and doubt will also lose the meaning of the answer.

Exercise is a means of uniting the mind, soul and body. The essence or truth of Sanatana Dharma is that through martial arts or exercise, the mind is purified, and from the mind the soul and from the soul the soul are purified through the rituals and practices of the eternal Dharma called the Kula Daiva Dharma. The essence or energy form of this Sanatana Dharma lies dormant in the Tulu nation.

Who should wake up?

This is how the eternal Dharma (Sanadhana Dharma) of devotion to mother, father and Guru – worship of God – friendship, brotherhood and respect for others should be understood in this modern era.

Train children to view mother, father and Guru (Guru) with devotion, train children to worship God, see their peers as friends, protect them as brothers and sisters, respect their elders, train children to do the same.

This dharma (Sanadana Dharma) of personal development is the eternal dharma. It should not be seen as the dharma of Tulunad alone. It is the dharma for the good of India, humanity and the people of the world. This dharma should be awakened through students who integrate education with life.

Part 4 Tulunadan Kalari (Talim)

In Tulu Nadu (Kasaragod), the Tulu Nadu martial art called “Talim” is still preserved and practiced as a form of exercise, to worship Anjaneya Swami (Veera Hanuman), and as a display during festivals and processions. However, despite efforts to preserve it through the new generations, it seems that the new generation is becoming less interested in practicing Tulu Nadu martial art.

With the advent of modern equipment, the new generation is avoiding practicing divine arts like martial arts and yaksha singing because they are not ready to enter any field that requires physical effort or because they are not healthy enough to do so. The new generation is not entering fields that require physical or mental effort or effort. The truth is that they are not healthy enough to do so.

But without giving importance to the body or understanding the secret of health (a state free from disease), the new generation growing up in all caste and religious beliefs without a master to control or advise them to control the food they eat is changing without receiving knowledge.

What I have said does not mean that we should believe in caste, religion, or God or be made to believe in them. It means that we should first believe in ourselves, that is, in myself.

The new generation that is being talked about must develop their own identity for the sake of a healthy society, for the sake of the country, and for the sake of the nation.

How can you keep your body healthy? Is it possible to make your own food? What changes will your body experience when you switch from a traditional diet to a modern one? What are the benefits of practicing arts and sports? What are the duties you should follow for your mind and body in everyday life? What is the importance of sleep for a healthy life? How can you study without disturbing your sleep rhythm? What is the time to sleep at night and when to wake up in the morning? Is rest necessary during the day? What are the benefits of practicing arts or sports along with studies? How can the new generation or children grow up with a healthy body and a healthy mind in a world where there is no one to teach them, whether it is from school education, from the cultural community, or from their own homes? What will tomorrow's society become? Who should find the solution?

Another problem faced by the new generation is food. It has been described above. Chemicals, artificiality, aging, mixture. Chemicals = chemical fertilizers, artificiality = artificially preserved, aging = stored for days, mixture is added to add flavor. Girls suffer the most from this. It causes mental disorders after childbirth. Due to adulterated food and the side effects of medicines used during pregnancy and postpartum, even if the first birth passes without any problems, mental disorders increase with the second birth. Although it is possible to gradually return to normal, for some, mental disorders end in family disputes and separation after the second birth.

Edema, back pain, numbness in the legs, weight gain, etc. All of this occurs because the body does not get the energy it needs from the combination of poor diet and side effects of medications.

Next is intoxication; because the older generation has already moved into a culture that does not know how to exist in the material world, the values of mother, father, teacher, God, friend, brotherhood, and respect have been poisoned by violence, exploitation, commerce, intoxication, falsehood, and crime. Who is to stop this? It originates from there. Origin does not mean that it was created. It means that it re-emerges because it was covered up.!

How can the generation growing up in this material world survive with mental health and culture? The new generation, who does not know culture or life through experience, will never seek intoxicants..! Being deceived. No matter how much we hide the truth, we cannot hide it from the truth of Brahma.

Even when it is said that intoxication is something that eats away at the mind, the truth of the soul is forgotten from the mind. The scientific world has not yet spread the truth that if the mind is lost, the soul will also be destroyed. This may happen due to the desire for profit or fear of life. But the truth is that no one can escape the truth of Brahma, which is intelligence itself.

The soul comes from the Prana; Brahma is the origin and combination of the soul. This Brahma becomes impure. The question of who should protect Brahma is irrelevant here. Because our country is not a monarchy established according to rituals. However, if we look back from the fact of governance, the developments in the monarchy are surprising.

The structures built by the kings, who owned the entire country, still stand tall today. Although the structures were built to last for five hundred or a thousand years, only a few clans have been able to experience them for generations. Why have other clans not been able to maintain or survive the tradition?

It is understood that Brahma can be experienced and purified only through human birth.!! Similarly, Brahma energy also gets polluted through human birth. The characteristics and actions born from human emotions pollute the power of Brahman both spiritually (through the mind) and materially (through actions).

The soul is a part of the Brahma power, the prana is the transformation of the soul, the mind is a part of the prana, the senses are a part of the mind, and the material world is the enjoyment of the senses. Who takes over the rule of the kingdom thinking that he can protect this material world or purify the emotions of man? It is Brahma, the form of intelligence, who decides how that race should exist. These true events can be seen and understood through historical monuments.

Those who control the free thoughts of men with boundaries and laws are forced to experience its benefits and disadvantages.

The chief king, the kings and their clans are forced to experience the purification of Brahma Shakti.

Drugs are the modern way to pollute Brahma. Those who do not use drugs suffer more than drug addicts. The wages for their work are received from the treasury and Brahma. The main problems they face are bile, mental and constipation. This is because they do not get the opportunity to live in pure nature. To find the truth, they have to follow suspicion or are forced to cover up the truth, which leads to the training of super intelligence. Those who have to face physical problems are those who have to work as guards.

Although a sedentary life involves constant physical problems, one may also have to face the problem of sacrificing one's life due to family problems. The reason is the conceptual forms or doubts that arise from the analysis of the superintelligence. This happens because the intellect and the superintelligence, that is, the conscious mind and the subconscious mind, work together. The conscious mind creates ideas and the subconscious weaves forms and expressions for the ideas and repeatedly isolates itself. This is what causes problems for such people.

But those who set aside the individual and personality, see things materially, resolve them materially, and protect truth and dharma are able to lead normal lives and enjoy life to the fullest in a relaxed life.

When we see the owner of a body, that is, a personality, we see it as a living being; but we cannot understand that we are seeing a body with infinite billions of living particles. Thus, it is impossible to destroy a personality with infinite billions of living particles, including mind and body, without first destroying itself. That is the incomprehensible secret.

When the substance of intoxication arises, it is produced knowing that it is destined for destruction, so the producer destroys himself in mind and body in atomic time (at the speed of light of a microsecond). There is no salvation for him or his family line in the universe itself, and that is to experience salvation.

Thought, intelligence and action are possible from the energy form formed by the combination of the prana particle of Brahma and the energy particle of the body. Any living being, including humans, can act with the energy received from Brahma through the mind and body. Action can only be performed after first experiencing this energy. That is, every action done, be it good or bad; cannot be physically performed without being offered (registered) in the mind, thought, soul and body. For example: Inheritance; Inheritance cannot exist without the birth of emotion. In this, whether the body is pure or impure, liberated or destroyed, the soul (Brahma power) will seek the path without being destroyed. Whatever kind of action is done, one will have to experience it accordingly.

Contamination includes adulterated food, medicines, drugs, alcohol, and chemical mixtures, while pollution = water, air, earth (soil), and sky are all becoming polluted due to chemical changes.

Artificial chemical change, also known as chemical modification, is a human contribution to the law of nature, which is biological change through chemical change, or chemical change through biological change.

The scientific world has not yet been able to understand the meaning and truth of the term “chemical change”. A chemical is something that does not die or cannot die once it is born. Once a chemical is born, it cannot die or become inert. What happens is that it dissolves into another. A chemical change is the dissolution of one chemical into another. A chemical substance undergoes a repeated cycle of dissolution and change.

In this way, the chemical particle (atom, tanmatra), which is like the energy form of Brahman, remains safe by being diluted in the combination. The water, air, earth (soil), and sky, which are subjected to chemical change in this way, become polluted.

The human being who exists in this chemical change also becomes a chemical substance with treatment. That is, if one disease is treated, it turns into another disease. Moreover, when one disease is reduced with medicine, another disease is born. It is changing differently.! We see the vision of human diseases changing to a state that cannot be changed with medicine.

If a natural disaster, epidemic or something else happens, the people of India may not be able to sustain their lives with medicine. Maintain a moral sense that the country is heading towards disaster, keep watching, or be vigilant.

Our India is the most populous country in the world. A country with about one hundred and forty crore people. It is a fact that when a global sports mega event is held, countries that do not reach the size and development of Tulunad will be ahead of India. Is it because the health sector is collapsing? Our dreams, India’s dreams are disappearing.

If chemicals, artificial substances, aging, adulteration, mixtures, and medicines are on a dangerous path, and if it cannot be identified and resolved, neither the people nor those who serve the people nor our country will be able to cope with the disaster. Moreover, it is the mafias in the health sector that are destroying all sectors of the country and advancing. If this sector is not controlled without restraint, the country will fall into an extremely dangerous situation.

The truth is that even the scientific world cannot determine how long humans can survive on earth. Understand the truth that seeking the secrets of modern science from a body where the soul or mind resides in a body that has lost its health will lead to the downfall of modern science.

Modern science has not been able to protect humanity from any disaster so far. Whether it is tsunamis, torrential rains, storms, landslides, Corona (Covid-19), Nipah, chickens, birds, tomatoes, pigs, bats, rats, flu, or any other disaster, the world of science has not been able to physically prevent or treat and cure the diseases that man has seen and experienced.

The media, which publishes news without finding the truth or facts, plays a major role in stunting development. The private media plays a major role in feeding the health drug mafias that create and register non-existent diseases. When this spreads across the world, everything from the tourism sector to hotels to small businesses is destroyed and disappears.

When a new generation enters a society that cannot understand the truth that one should not dig where one is sitting, they are welcomed with intoxication. But the honor of the newspaper and the investigation team that spread it must be protected.! What could be the reason why the origin of intoxication has not been discovered for years?! Is it because modern technological equipment does not work on time? Who should we ask the question to!

The martial arts of Tulunadu; The secrets hidden in the Tulunadu Kalari called Taalim are magnificent. My native land, Tulunadu, is a treasure trove of secrets that cannot be explained in words. Yakshaganam, Theyyam, Tulunadu Kalari, and other languages like Malayalam, Kannada, Konkani, Marathi, Karad, Urdu, Tulu, are the mother tongues of ordinary people born and raised in Tulunadu, where Kerala and Karnataka merge. In addition, Sanskrit, Hindi, English, and Arabic are also popular.

Although Tulunad does not have a great heritage in the form of historical ruins or monuments that welcome visitors, it always strives to preserve what it has. Therefore, Tulunad welcomes everyone to see and experience what it has.

Everyone is welcome to join us to practice the martial art of Talim, which is part of the Tulunad culture mentioned in northern songs, watch Yakshagana, and enjoy the experience of Tulunad.

As history passes, ruins remain.! Not because it cannot move with time.!! Because it waits for generations. That's why.!!

I consider it a blessing of the Almighty that I was able to remember the Guru who lived before I was born and twenty years ago and to find a humble description. Guru Master K. Kannan Kasaragod Pulikunnu (Piligudde), who attained salvation in 1965, is the main guru of the martial art of Tulu called Taalim. Guru Master Kannan, who was born in 1910, is known to have practiced martial arts at a very young age. The great Guru, who was able to train countless disciples, molded his disciples in the states of Kerala and Karnataka.

One of Kannan Master's disciples is Gurumaster KT Babu, the current headmaster of Sri Veera Njaneya Syayamasala (Godha,Gymnasium) located at Karanthakad in Kasaragod. In addition, Gurumaster Bolar Jagannath, Gurumaster Ramakrishnan, Gurumaster Purushan, and Gurumaster Venkitaraj, who have attained salvation, were also his main disciples.

Guru Master KT Babu was born in 1947 to Kunji Raman and Madhavi Amma. He started his training in Talim in 1961 and joined the harmonium class from Sri Govinda Master in 1963. He has been practicing and teaching the martial art of Goda (Garadi) in Tulunad for 63 years and is making a living as a training guru.

Guru Master Bolar Jagannathan was born in 1929 in Pulikkunnu, Kasaragod. His primary education was in the fourth grade. Then he entered Godha. His training in Godha led to circus training. Maruthur Gopalan Ramachandran, who came to see the circus held in Chennai, saw the training of Pulaichi Thalaivar MGR-Jagan nath Mash and met him, which was a new turning point in Jagannath Mash's life.

He acted as a stunt master and villain in MGR films from 1950 to 1960. After returning home, he started his first martial arts academy in Bolar (Karnataka). Hence, the name Bolar was added to his own name and later he became known as "Bolar Jagannath Mash". Like the Pulikali in Kerala, there is Pulikali in Tulunad too, and the martial art Pulikali was performed in Bolar itself to worship Goddess Mangala. Sri Bolar Jagannath Master, who gave birth to 108 Godha Garadi (Vyayama Sala) gymnasiums in Tulunad, (Kasaragod and Mangalore), attained salvation on 19 November 2009 at the age of eighty.

Sasidhara Thekkekara was born on 14 February 1970 in the village of Karadukka in the Kasaragod district of Koliyadukkam Thekkekara, the eldest son of T. Babu and Sundariyamma.

After completing his primary education at Chennamkode A, L, P, School, he continued his studies at Karadukka GHS. In 1979, at a very young age, while studying in the fourth standard, he took the discipleship of Gurumaster Bolar Jagannath in martial arts (Talim) and stepped onto the path of martial arts. He made a lot of efforts to develop martial arts during the period of school education. Until the end of the nineteenth century, the rural areas of Kasaragod were a time when the living conditions were not progressing, and most of the villagers of Kasaragod had to drop out of school. This was also the life of Sasidhara Thekkara.

Thus, in his teenage years, left school and took up wage labor as his livelihood. He also sincerely tried to keep martial arts as part of his life. Along with this, the local residents also formed a (Gymnasium) named Sree Veeranjaneya Vyayamasala (Gymnasium) Thekkakara Koliyadukkam.

Guru Master Bolar Jagannathan, who taught each of the disciplines, entrusted Shasidhara with the responsibility of imparting the knowledge he had learned to others and to preserve and maintain the martial arts. Today, Shasidhara Thekkekkara has been able to train more than a hundred disciples in the village of Kadaka and nearby villages. Shasidhara Thekkekkara, who had traveled to spiritual knowledge (concentration) through martial arts, had traveled to material knowledge through Yakshagana. He first tried to learn Yakshagana by accepting the discipleship of Sri Malinga Nayak Peelikutlu. Then he studied Natyam from Sri Shabbanakothi Ram Bhat, Yakshagana Bhagavatika under the tutelage of Sri Vishwavinoda Banari Delambadi and Sri Suryanarayana Padakammaiya Bayar, and Carnatic classical music under the tutelage of Nuji Sri Narayana Sharma.

Shasidhara Thekekara, who combines art with his life while struggling to overcome the hardships of life with the income he earns through his own hard work, makes a living by driving an auto.

The art and culture of Tulunad cannot be described in a small book.! Through the journeys I have traveled through my dreams and imaginations, I have been able to understand...! Similarly, all countries...!!

I recognize the truth that the culture of a country is a combination of all the customs, rituals, arts and traditions inherent in that country.! Our India is a treasure trove of cultures.!! This culture is also a way to maintain mental and physical health. What is lost by staying away from culture is the purity of the mind, soul and health of the body.

Therefore, if we lose the spiritual energy that can be obtained or assimilated from rituals and practices, and cannot purify the spirit of the body, mind, soul, and spirit, and seek refuge in medicine (regardless of what type of treatment), the result is like a chemical change. That is, from one thing to another! Liberation cannot be achieved.

It is only possible to escape from emotions when one abides in rituals. The only way to get rid of emotions is through rituals, ceremonies, arts, sports, and culture. Therefore, preserve customs and rituals, practice and enjoy arts and sports. Preserve the eternal Sanathana Dharma (Hindu Dharma). Regard your mother, father and Guru with devotion. Live your life in worship of God, rituals and respect for friends and brothers and sisters. May the Almighty bless you.

Reading.! It is an experience.!!

Reading is the best way and medicine to lead a holy life with long life and health of mind and body, with the feeling of thoughts, analyses, principles, concepts, dreams, forms, images, desires to know, new ways, etc. that are born through each reading. So, by reading this book, I hope it will help you travel to the heritage of your hometown and describe it as a book!

With respect
